Fall, winter, spring, summer. The yearly cycle of seasons, as ever-changing and varied as the live lives it wrapped itself around. It was a year of people, a year of US: 844 students and 92 faculty and staff members.

Changing seasons affected not only nature, but life within West High. Somehow the calendar and clock seemed to dictate behavior as one could almost predict the time of day by the number of students on the senior floor, or how close it was to finals or vacation by the expressions on people's faces and the number of students in the library.

The illusive Typical West High Student: a creature just as likely to be toting a squirt gun and wearing an "I'd rather be dead than red" button on an Iowa t-shirt as to be sporting white leather shoes with cuffed, plaid bell-bottoms; as likely to be in the parking lot listening to the car's tape deck as to be in the gym shooting baskets, playing cards in the cafeteria, taking a class at the University, or in the stairwells with a close friend.

The ending of summer heralded an optimistic August beginning of school as, during Convocation ceremonies, Senator Jack Miller spoke of the individual's responsibility to be an informed voter. Merlin Ludwig, in his first year as superintendent of schools, predicted that, "It is going to be a great year" as he advocated the philosophy, "the student is Number One."

Indeed, the year promised to be at least different than ever before, as unique in its individuals and happenings as each different fall leaf, winter snow-flake blooming flower of spring or summer sunset is unique from every other. New students, including three on exchange programs, several others from around the world and many ex-U-High students, as well as new teachers joined the population and in part made up for the loss of a ninth grade from the building.

Changing seasons, Changing moods

Yet with the changing colors of the autumn leaves, the mood of the students, changed from optimism to anger and pessimism, as a series of unexpected events disrupted daily routine. The hiring of a grounds supervisor, the suspension of eighteen football players for training violations and controversy over open campus culminated in a heated three hour open Student Senate meeting in the Little Theater. Communication was the key word as administration, faculty and students expressed their thoughts on the issues. Several students complained of having no say in administrative decision-making. One suspended player described "unreasonable" procedures and said that, "The issue was blown way out of proportion."

When the anger and distrust began to subside, the administration began to act on open campus requests, finally allowing what was termed "Individualized Scheduling," a system where parents, counselor and student could opt for open campus. While many students took advantage of this plan, it later seemed that one needed little more than transportation, not a permission slip, to leave school.

Soon fall faded into winter and we found that the usually rutty parking lot could be even worse when filled with slush or ice. With the cold, optimism began to creep back into the student body when many positive things were accomplished by students. A construction skills class built a "tree-house" for the Shimek Elementary School library. Our debaters and girls' volleyball team made it to state and a combination West-City High magazine was published. The sophomore basketball team went undefeated to win the Mississippi Valley title, the cafeteria was painted with a multicolored rainbow and Student Senate "adopted" a foster child from Columbia.

In January when several members of the senior class graduated or left school, many students, particularly their classmates, began to think toward the end of the year and the future. Plans for work or college began to be formed as a yearning for spring grew.

And spring came at last, bringing the new girls' sports of track and golf. Bicycles returned to the racks in front of the school, and in back the tennis courts were switched to face the right way, perhaps helping to bring a state tennis championship to West. Following tradition, the water tower was painted with a bold '73', but an unusual addition was made to remind us that at least one student missed his old school.

Before the year ended, another drinking controversy was experienced. This time students were ejected from chorus for alleged drinking during their concert tour. In part due to their behavior, the administration decided to cancel the band's tour to Chicago. The action was described as "over-reacting" by one upset band member who, like other students, believed that the behavior of the chorus could not "be indiscriminately applied to other school groups." Despite this criticism the decision stood and the unceasing cycle of seasons continued through to the end of May.

Before many of us realized it, the time we had been awaiting for so long finally arrived — the end of the school year. It came upon us amidst the frenzy of state tournaments, the Spring Thing, finals, job-hunting, term papers, the hasty making-up of skipped gym classes and graduation.

On May 30, 242 seniors completed their secondary school education by becoming the fifth graduating class of West High. For the second year the program was presented entirely by students, featuring senior musicians and speakers. After the ceremony the seniors departed, leaving underclassmen to a final day of testing.

But while classes ended on that Thursday, school-related activities extended through into summer. Girls' softball and boys' sophomore and varsity baseball kept the Trojan spirit alive.

With the end of these sports, though, the cycle of seasons was not yet complete. Summer vacation, those months between the routine of the school years, had yet to be filled and experienced. For some, summer was merely a continuation of school as they attended summer school or workshops. Many students worked to save money for college or family, sometimes even to finance a car or pay for a trip. Others spent the time traveling, swimming or playing tennis, or just relaxing and letting each day flow by.

As the cycle neared its end and readied itself to be repeated, many began to feel a need to get back to school, not so much for the school or classes themselves as for a renewal of old friendships and activities, and perhaps a desire for the security offered by the school routine. So students prepared themselves for another year at West or, for graduates, for work or continued schooling in college. The cycle of seasons began to repeat as it had every other year.

Impressions — expressions of the coinciding of special people, places and circumstances. Just as we were shaped, so we too left impressions, remains of a life created and lived.

"My senior year of high school has, as all experiences are, been a mixture of good and bad: good teachers and bad teachers, good friends and not such good friends. It has been a period of turmoil for me. I'm not sure if I learned much of value from any of my classes, but I gained a lot of experience in life. It was pretty good."

'Impressions'

'West's policies are basically good for students who can accept responsibility, but the problem I've seen in my years here is that most of the students take advantage of their freedom and, as a result, infringe on the rights of others.'

'It was alright but I wouldn't want to do it again.'

'I had a lot of fun and didn't work, but still ended up with good grades.
What more can you ask for?'

'No regrets but it's time to move on.'

Homecoming jives with 'water'

Certain R and X ratings could have been the categories for the 1972 Homecoming queen candidates as they paraded in front of their unbelieving critics in an array of baby diapers, gym clothes, nurses uniforms and bathing suits. Sensations of amazement were experienced as the seven candidates listened with blushed and horrified faces to secrets of their mysterious past.

Led by the queen contenders the snake-like car parade wound around the City Park and started toward West. Finally, the enthusiastically contrived caravan of floats reached its destination at the front parking lot. The cheers grew louder when the bonfire roared with flames in the shape of a huge "W." Cheerleaders, alumni, and Bump Elliott rallied for the Trojans as the night went on.

Weather for the football game turned out to be sparkling, clear and crisp, and appropriately enough, "Under the Stars" was the theme for the weekend. Each homecoming candidate was introduced individually to the spectators as the band marched into a (cont.)

crown formation. After fighting out a see-saw battle against Bettendorf, the Trojans ended with a disappointing loss. As the crowds filtered out of the stadium, thoughts of the game soon faded and were replaced by anticipation for the dance.

"Water" provided music for almost every kind of dance step. Students, alumni and teachers united in hopping and bopping to the rock and roll of 50's music. Stunned Holly Richardson stood in the middle of the remaining six candidates as she was crowned by alumni Christy Maxwell, West's first queen.

Actors stage first production

The audience is hushed. Lights are dimmed, the curtain is drawn back dramatically and West High's first production of the year opens with an ancient Chinese man portrayed by Cindy Hackman.

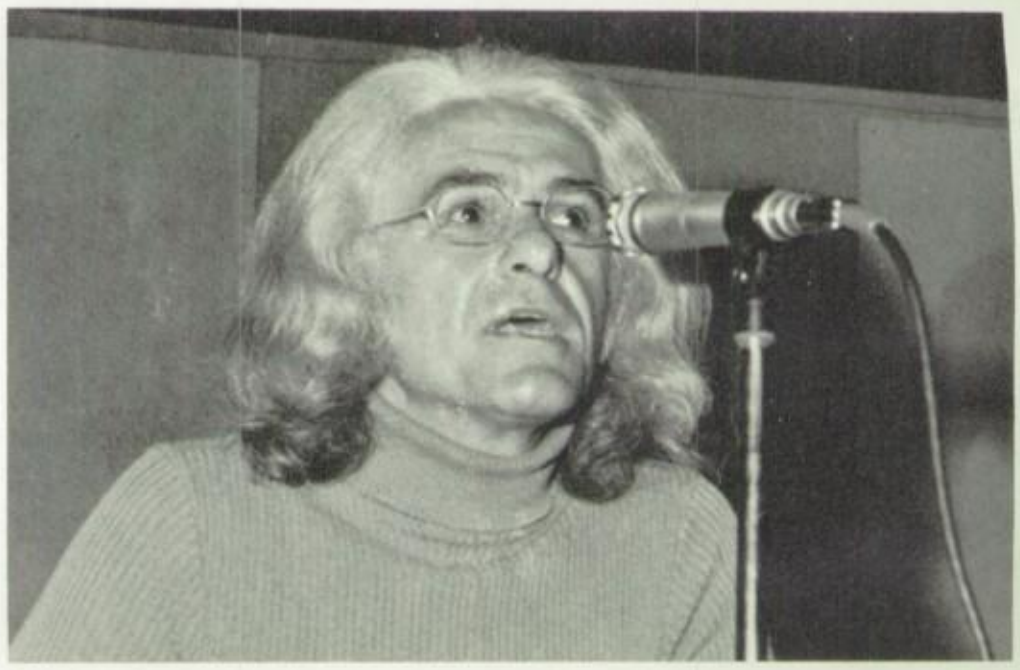
As the "Emperor's New Clothes" continues the Property Man narrates the great tragedy of the Chinese. Royal Weavers were summoned to fill the Emperor's yearly wardrobe. All the beautiful weaving had to be approved by Mike Singer, the Prime Minister of the Wardrobe, who was dirty and dishonest. This Prime Minister of Wardrobe had a bad habit of stealing the weavers hard work and selling it for himself. After many long years of hardship for the weavers good fortune finally came to their city. Two comical adventurers Zar played by Pete Duncan and Zan by Sara Hulme came to save the day and the play.

Left: The Old Woman, portrayed by Sarah Funk, is supported by Lindsay Metcalf, who is accompanied by fellow weavers Debbie Herring and Doug McClure. This scene took place in West High School's Production of "The Emperor's New Clothes."

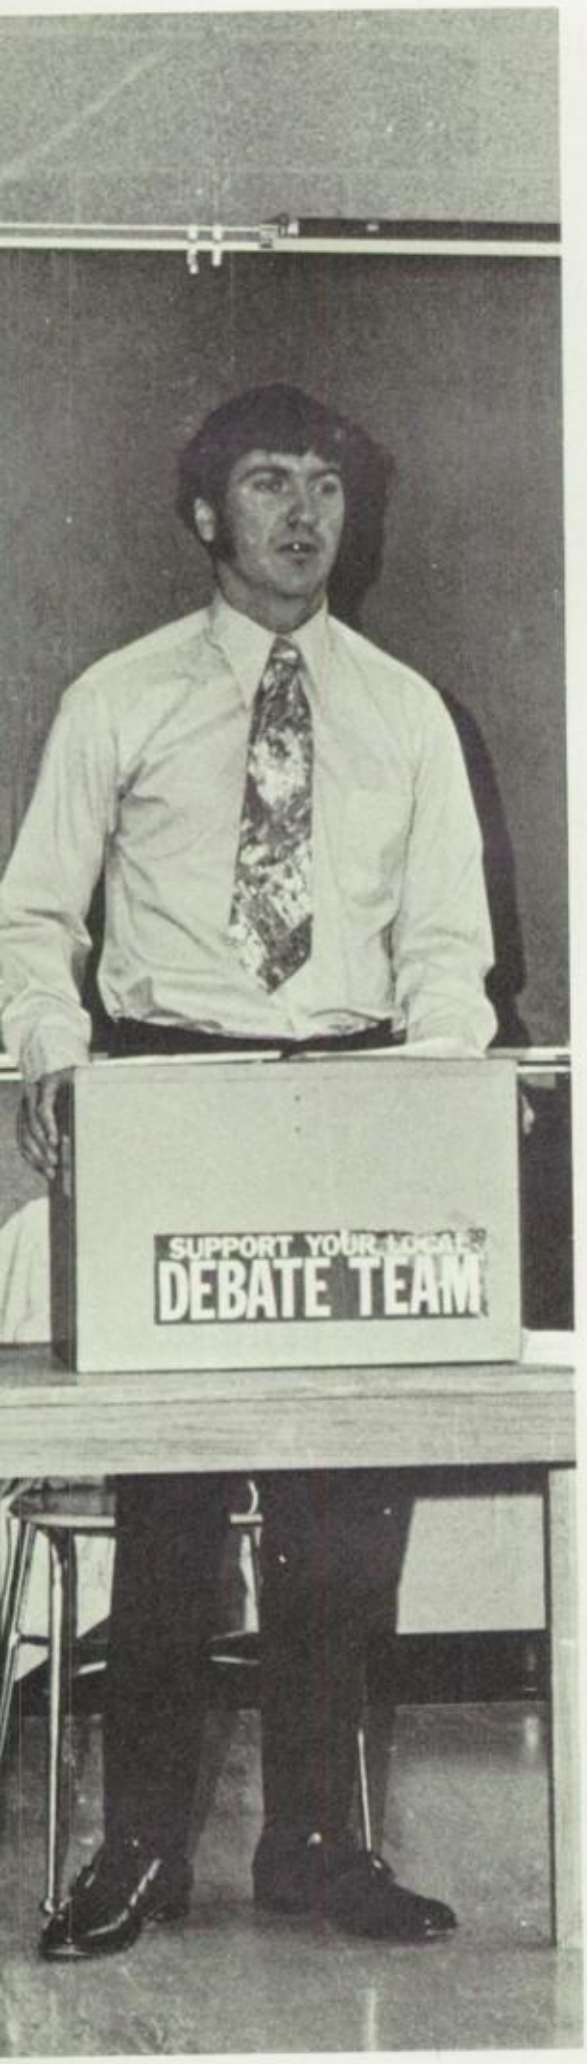
Bottom: Han, the villain of the story and played by Michael Singer, forces the weavers to bow to him in a scene from "The Emperor's New Clothes."

Top: Fourth hour found students in the study hall snake dancing, meeting people, or just listening to the guest band, Free Dirt.

Right: A very popular speaker was Glenn Kellogg, a member of the Gay Liberation Movement, who described his way of life with a question-answer method.



Time given for understanding



Human Relations Day was somewhat different than in past years. Rather than placing emphasis on inter-relation games and various musical and recreational activities, emphasis was placed on exposing students to various misunderstood groups in order to create better understanding and better human relations.

First hour of this half-day event was devoted to human relations games. These games were conducted by student senators and teachers.

Second and third hours were devoted to speakers. They were divided into three half-hour sessions with ten minutes in between for questions and answers. The nine speakers were repeated each session with students having the option of attending any three.

Speakers represented groups ranging from Gay Liberation, to the blind, to ROTC and to the school administration.

Nat Soper showed slides and described his summer AFS trip to Australia. Ex-convicts were represented by people from The Penal Digest, international, national magazine based in Iowa City.

Two women from the local women's center led spirited discussions on women and their role. Mike Smith, a blind Iowa Citian, told of his experiences in a sightless world.

Bonnie Orgren and Micky Soldofsky, both members of a local group dealing with epilepsy, explained epilepsy and described their experiences.

The witchcraft session was conducted by our AFS student from Ghana, Patty Ampofo, and Mr. Paul Jackson, a student of witchcraft. Patty related anecdotes which she learned in school in Africa, stories of peculiar happenings and phenomena, unexplainable except by witchcraft. Mr. Jackson told about the differences between white magic and satanism.

Glenn Kellogg spoke on Gay Liberation and was probably the most controversial and well attended of the speakers. As a member of the Gay Liberation Movement, Mr. Kellogg briefly described his life as a homosexual and then opened up to questions. Students passed up written questions and were impressed by Kellogg's treatment of them. Rather than sitting through the questions and only answering certain ones, he would pick up a question, read it aloud, and answer it quite candidly and in detail. Students were generally impressed by his frankness and courage.

Free Dirt's music during fourth hour provided an opportunity to let loose and jive with other students. People danced, jumped, smiled, and laughed, and everyone related in a positive way. When people left the cafeteria, they were sweaty and smiling and seemed to feel that the past hour had been worth all the effort they had put out.

Left: Mike Smith, who was blind since birth, spoke to students on Human Relations Day about how his life differs from ours.

'Day by Day' stills critics fears

Whispers of a tremendous past; the question silently plaguing the critics, "Can they do it this year?" Memories of talent passed and gone away plus a group of well rounded, versatile students who made up last year's choir.
On November 8th, 9th, and 10th old friends and new critics applauded optimistically the performance of the West High Choir as they presented their first "pops" concert of the year titled, "Day by Day."

Presenting a diverse number of selections, the theme for Part One alternated between moods of joy to the quiet moments of reflection. The entire choir sang, "The Sweet Sounds of Music" and "Vincent" as only a fraction of Part One.

"Solo Time," presented itself as Part Two produced a number of students who for the first time sang a solo, had a role in selections from "Bye, Bye, Birdie." Kevin Kelly and Jo Stidham presented Kevin's own song entitled, "When I See You," to an enthusiastic audience.

Part Three was a continuation of solos and Swing Choir swung into action with "Movin On," and "The Family Man."

Actors tear up stage in 'Homeward' play

"We can believe in the nothingness of life and we can believe in the nothingness of death, and life after death. But who can believe in the nothingness of Ben?" asked Dr. Maguire, portrayed by Arnie Moore. Ben, played by Mike Singer, had just died. The scene nearly had the audience in tears. The play ended in a smashing success when Eliza, played by Jennifer MacQueen, and W.O., played by Dave Caplan, literally tore the stage apart. It was humorous yet tragic in that they gave up all that they had worked for. Eugene, played by Alan Huey, finally got to college and Eliza out of the hole she had been in all her life.

The actors' inexperience was well hidden throughout the play. The many participants came off as if they had been on the stage for years.

McGovern visits campus

Long lines at the voting machines, political pamphlets strewn in the commons and telephone conversations with candidates indicated October 25 was not an average Wednesday. The Scholarship Committee labeled it "Candidates Day." The first of its kind at West, it focused on bringing a part of the outside world to the 18 year olds who would be voting for the first time. Throughout the day, various local candidates expressed their views to interested students. Among the more controversial politicians were Tim Kane, who "rapped" with students, and Richard Bartel, who was questioned on his right to run for public office.

Players suspended in massive football scandal

Action first began when three players were suspected by the coaches of drinking at the City High-Dubuque Senior game on October 26. After this, information started to filter into Mr. Lamm about parties that players were attending throughout the season. Mr. Lamm contacted Mr. Barker the following Saturday and explained to Mr. Barker the information he had received. On Monday morning they met and decided the best thing to do was to interview the players. They didn't want to make it a legal matter and pit student against student.

Players felt they were misled by Mr. Barker because they said that he stated to them that himself and Mr. Lamm basically knew who was involved, and that their testimony was just to tie up loose ends. But later the players found out that it was their own testimony that convicted them and that no player could have been suspended before the interviews. Mr. Barker felt this was a misunderstanding. What he meant was they basically knew who was going to the parties, but not if they drank at them.

Another thing that the players were unhappy about was the fact that some players were asked to circle a list of names of players in their class who they felt were nondrinkers. Mr. Barker said, "The players didn't have to fill out a list and several players said they wished not to."

Punishment for the players found guilty of drinking was more or less decided upon before the interviews. It was the same as that of a player who was caught drinking during the middle of the season. The punishment, being ineligible to participate in the next three varsity contests. This would involve the last football game against Dubuque Senior and first two events in the next sport they participated in.

Plagued racked gridders close season short

For the seniors, the season began with high hopes of a good conference finish, beating City High, and possibly a trip to the first I.H.S.A.A. playoffs.

By the end of the season it was evident that not one of these goals could be attained. West finished tied for last place in the Mississippi Valley Conference, was beaten by City High 39-0 and had no chance for a playoff berth. (cont.)

West played the last game of the year against Dubuque Senior without 18 players, and lost the game 27-0, finishing their dismal season at 1-8.

Letterman return to find new coach

When West's cross country had its first workout this fall, there were many new faces. Of the ten runners, three were returning lettermen and the other seven had never run cross country before. The team also sported a new head coach, Jerry Bush. Mr. Bush was heard to say at that first workout that anyone who would run two miles must be crazy. But by the end of the second meet, the runners could say, "We gotcha". Running was not a new sport for Mr. Bush however. He coached track for 12 years. Returning lettermen on Coach Bush's squad were Jeff Hartzler, Mark Kozik, co-captains, and Greg Leichty. The rookies were Doug Hetzler, Don Rinehart, Pat Colver, seniors; Todd Broadie, junior; and Jeff Kosier, Brad Dill and Brian Flaherty, sophomores. This close-knit group of runners was later joined by Randy Yoder, Rex Dawson, Bob Braverman, and Tom Scheuerman, all sophomores, and Brad Thorgaard, junior. (cont.)

The 4-5-1 record didn't bother the runners as much as the fact that they couldn't pull off the big one. Everyone's times kept improving until the state meet rolled around. There, led by co-captains Jeff Hartzler and Mark Kozik, they beat City High to the tune of 44-36. On the way home, Coach Bush began his recruiting for a bigger and better team in '73.

Swim team goes to state

With direction from tri-captains Holly Richardson, Jacki Dague and Betsy Eliott, the Girls' Swim Team compiled a 3-7 seasonal record. After 11 weeks of grueling practice, the team sent six competitors off to the state meet. These six, Jacki, Holly, Edith Sieg, Tammy Thompson, Mary Walker, and alternate Janeen Poss finished 13th in the final standings. On a whole, Coach Kryder was pleased with what the girls accomplished considering the facilities, time allowed and the small size of the squad.

WINTER

Snow surprizes Chili Supper; Paul Olin hailed Barndance King

Tuesday morning, Dec. 12, the snow was deep and continued to worsen throughout the day. Many events cancelled — one, of course, being the chili supper.

Rescheduling for the coming Thursday and the loss of business were only a few of the problems. Twenty Pep Club members found themselves eating or freezing the desserts they made for Tuesday and then making more for Thursday.

The school kitchen found a place to store three cases of beans, five cases of tomato juice, 80 pounds of hamburger, and other varying necessities. The chili supper, sponsored by the Pep Club, still came out ahead, but wasn't the big money maker it was hoped to be.

Snow seemed to be a big problem for several events this year and it was very evident the day of the GRA Barndance. The Hoghouse Happening was held anyhow, crowning King Paul Olin by popular vote from the candidates' baby pictures.

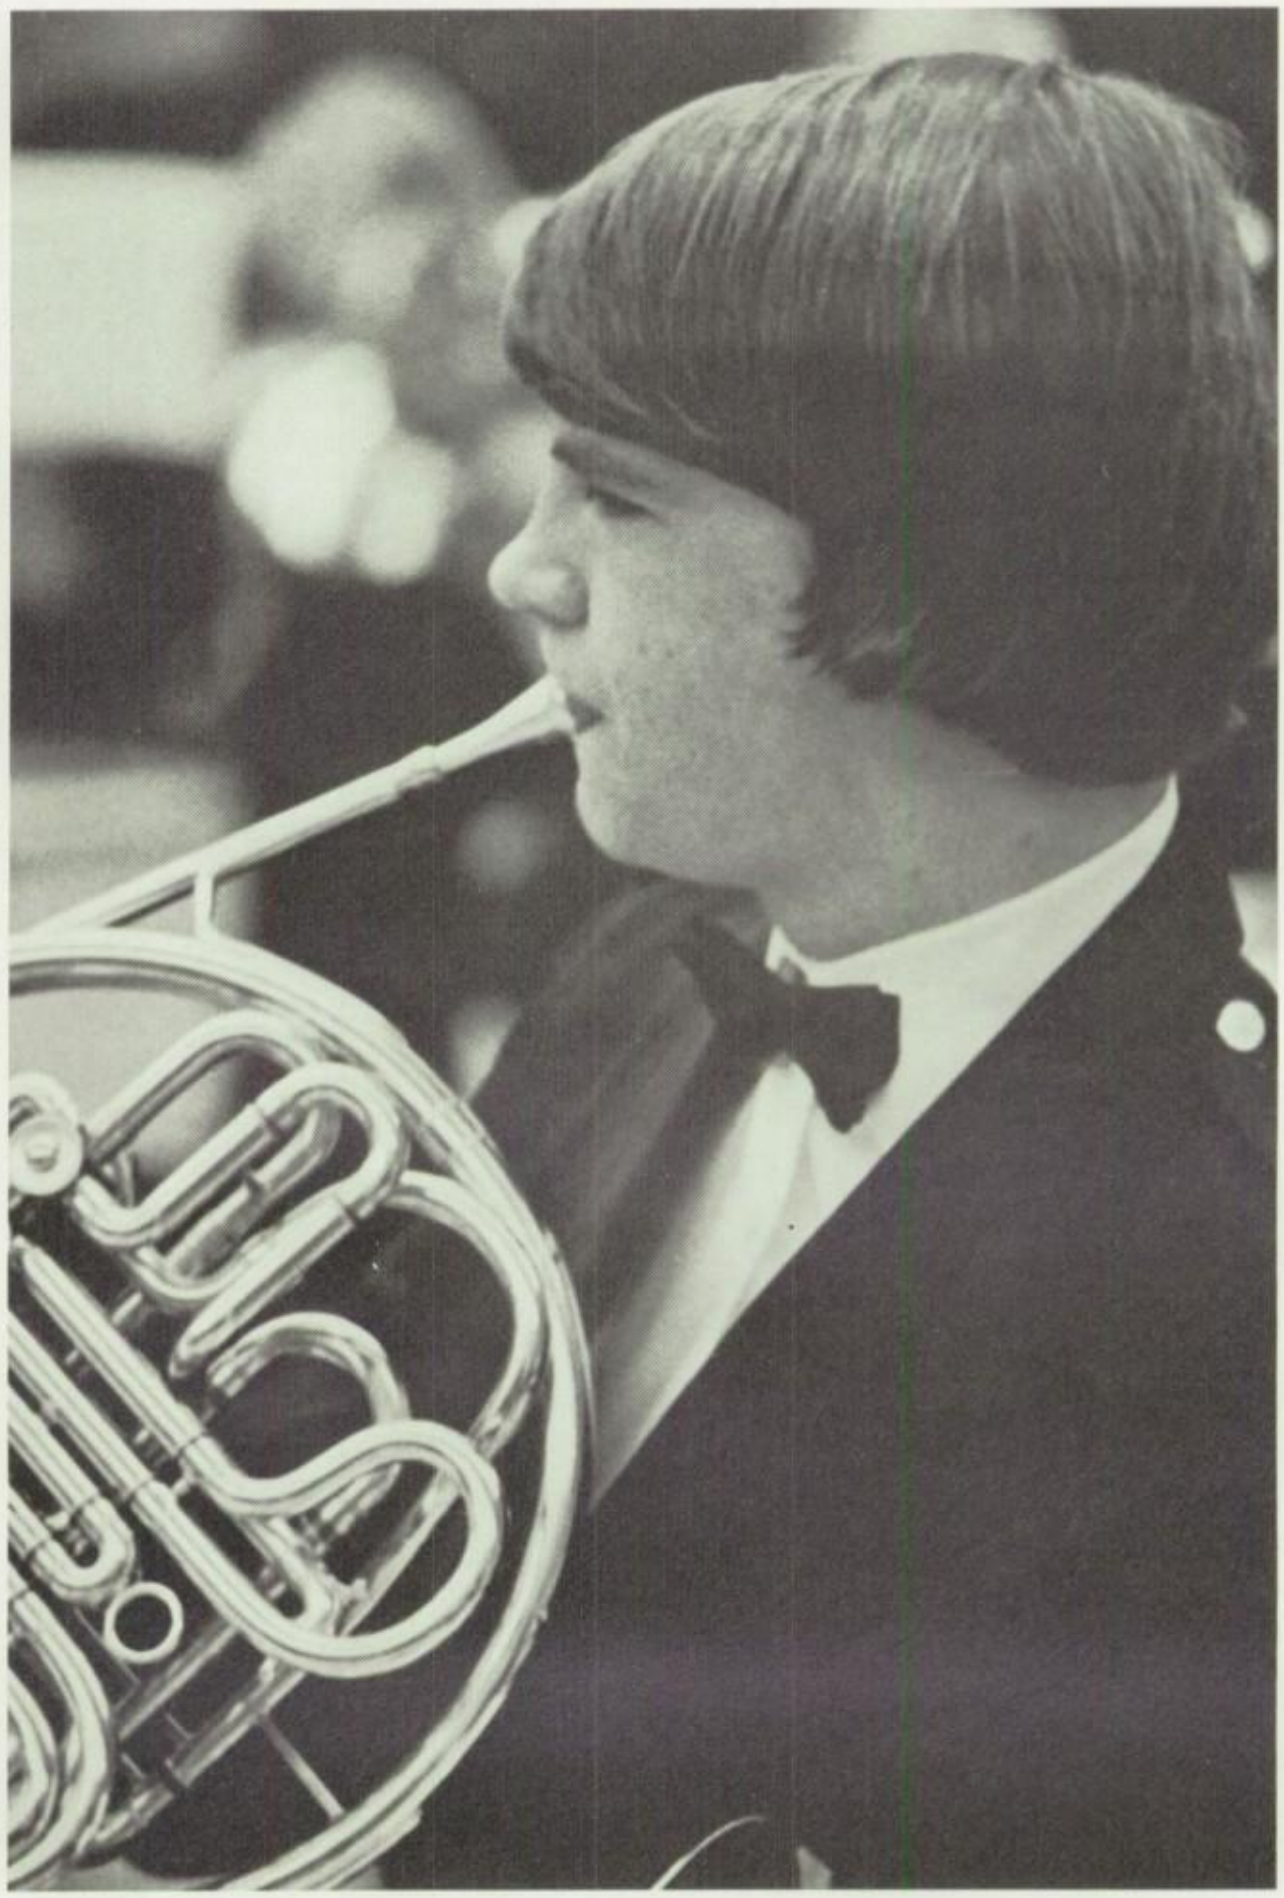
West musical highlights heard throughout the city and state



The sounds of music created by West High's music students this year were not only heard at West, but throughout the community and the state.

Just as Hancher Auditorium in its premiere season dominated the University of Iowa's music program, it was also the highlight of the year for the West High Band. Playing the part of the River City Marching Band, the musicians paraded across the stage and up the aisles of Hancher to the tune of "Seventy-Six Trombones," climaxing the performance of Meredith Wilson's "Music Man."

The orchestra, too, was able to make use of the new university music facilities with their performance of Verdi's Opera, "La Traviata," in Clapp Hall. Several singers from West High's Chorus and from the community joined with the orchestra to unfold the tragic romance of Violetta and Alfredo.

In January, the entire chorus combined talents with the orchestra after being selected to participate in the Iowa Music Educator's Association Convention in Des Moines. The chorus performed two numbers with the orchestra, "Magnificot," composed by Charpentier and Brahm's "Song of Fate."

Brian Grassi concentrates on counting his measures of rest during a combined orchestra and chorus concert in the little theater.

Drama garnishes top ratings for performances in state competition

Drama stayed winningly active during January and February. Out of five groups participating at the district speech meet, three received I ratings, enabling them to continue on to the state speech tournament in Cedar Rapids.

In this state-wide competition at Washington High School, both Lori Davies and Mike Singer with a one act play, and Jennifer MacQueen and Mike Singer in duet acting received I ratings.

The Choral Reading, Spoon River Anthology, received both a I and the speech meet's outstanding performance award, winning the right to travel to Des Moines for a final performance. In the cast of Spoon River Anthology were Dave Caplan, Steve Dewey, Peter Duncan, Cathy Hamel, Sue Neely, Cindi Peterson, and Don Sheldon.

Small crowd lets loose with friends and Free Dirt

Though the Winter Dance, or Hearts nd Flowers as it was also known, lidn't draw huge crowds, those who ame were all dedicated jivers, and not ecessarily formal either, as clothing aried from ties and formals to open ollars and shirts to workshirts and eans. The students let it loose under a anopy of crepe paper and balloons to he amplified sounds of Free Dirt, vandering in and between the com- mons and the cafeteria.

Things didn't vary from the normal oo much, as about half the time was pent dancing, and the other half talk- ng and laughing with friends and the occasionally harried chaperones.

The atmosphere was relaxed, as students came in clothing they were comfortable in, and no special emphasis was placed on the necessity of a date, and its cost and its problems. The "big day" was hectic for some, as the very small decorating committee worked to turn out a masterpiece of deception (this isn't really the cafeteria, is it?), then dinner out, the dance, and perhaps a pizza.

For others, the afternoon was leisure- ly, coming to the dance when they chose or found time, followed with the same pizza. Though the dance was said to be a flop in different ways, it was enjoyed by all for some reason, whether for the band, the atmosphere, the fact that it was a dance, a chance to dress up, or down, a chance to jive, a chance to meet and fool around with friends, or a chance to be "alone" with someone special nearby.

Singing along with the band, Free Dirt, Cindy Clark claps her hands to the beat.

Young cagers surprise valley with a season mark of 14-8

West High's 1972-73 basketball season was the most successful this school has ever had. The combined record of the varsity, junior varsity and sophomore squads was an incredible 45-8. Not only was it successful, but a surprise as well. With only two returning lettermen, John Waite and Jim Houghton, the varsity cagers were picked to finish last in a pre-season poll of Mississippi Valley writers. However the Trojans, with a 9-5 record, earned a tie for second place.

Highlighted in the season were eight straight victories. Included in the string were wins over fifth ranked Decorah and Mount Pleasant giving the Trojans first place in the 1972 Mount Pleasant holiday tournament.

Head coach Jerry Bush was a unanimous choice as Valley coach of the year while the Trojans compiled a 14-8 final record. Roc Rawlings and Kent Pickens, both juniors, were selected to the first and second all-conference teams respectively.

West High received its first championship as the sophomore team finished the season with a perfect 18-0 record. The J.V.'s also went unbeaten in 13 games. With these two teams back next year along with Pickens and Rawlings, the outlook is bright.

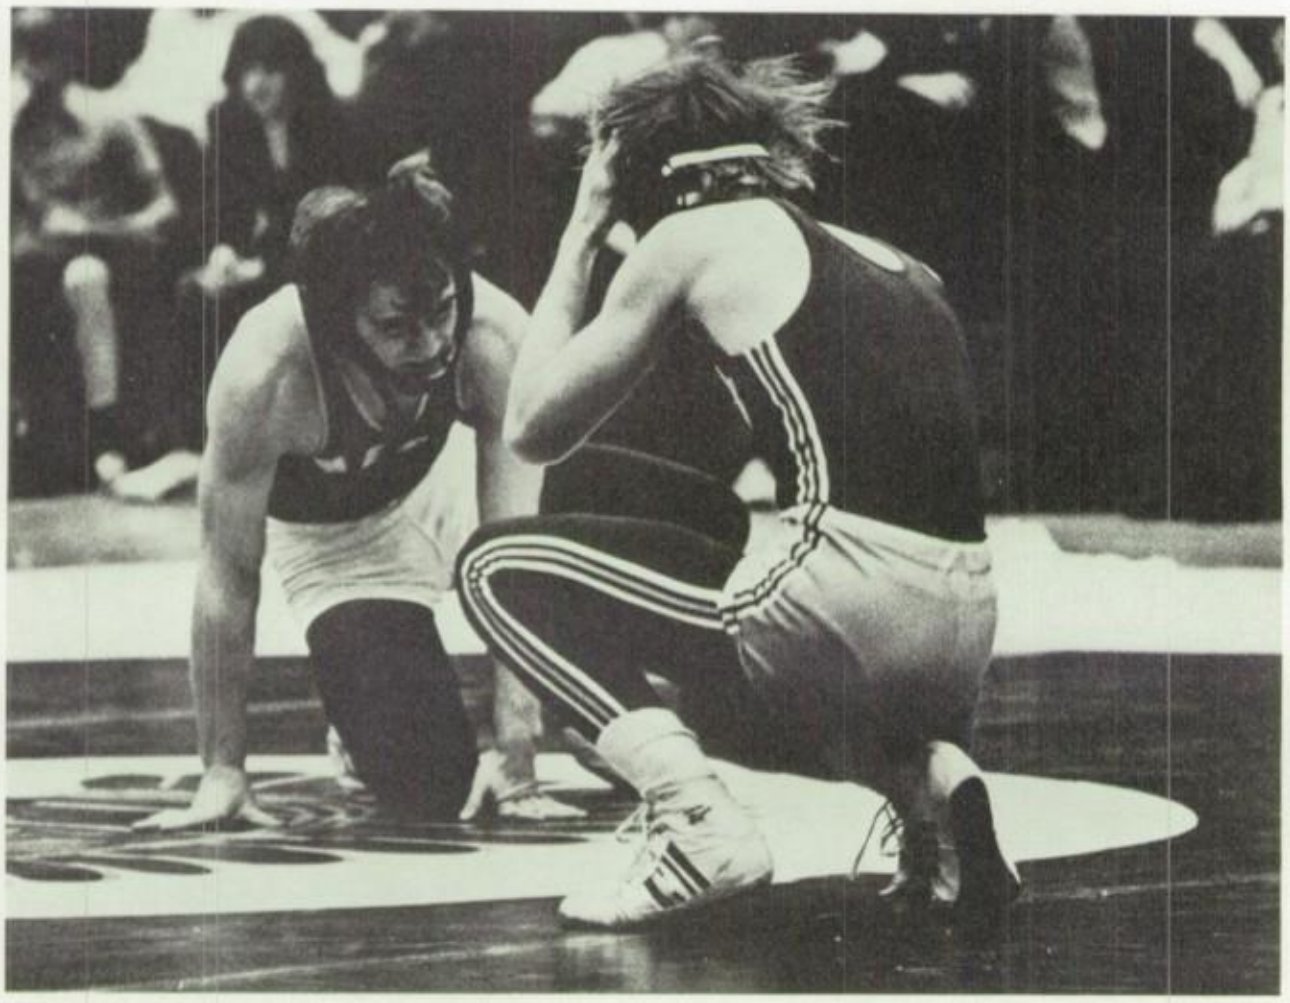
Dave Kacena catches his breath after a match with a Kennedy grappler.



Wrestling, grapplers, gripping the problem—state

Wrestling is a sport which requires great strength and speed. Most of all, you need to have enough tenacity to come back from a loss, or be able to give it that last final umph, when you feel you have no more. This year's team was a fine example of this. One night they lost to Jefferson (C.R.) 52-0, but were still able to come back the next night and win the Lancer Invitationals.

This year's team standing was quite an improvement over last year. They placed third in a ten team conference with a 5-4 record. The Trojan grapplers overall record was a strong 7-5.

In a season marked by both narrow victories and losses, a milestone of the decade was passed with West's first defeat of archrival City High, by a score of 38-6.

West's showing in the State meet this year was minimal. Alone, at 167, Steve Pate carried West High's sword to the end by placing second at both the sectional and district meet, and going on to participate in the state meet in Des Moines.

Singled out among the men for superior individual achievement was Dave Kacena, the team captain and Eric Griffith, who won the honor of being the year's most improved wrestler. Once again Steve Pate came through and won the distinction of being the team's most valuable member.

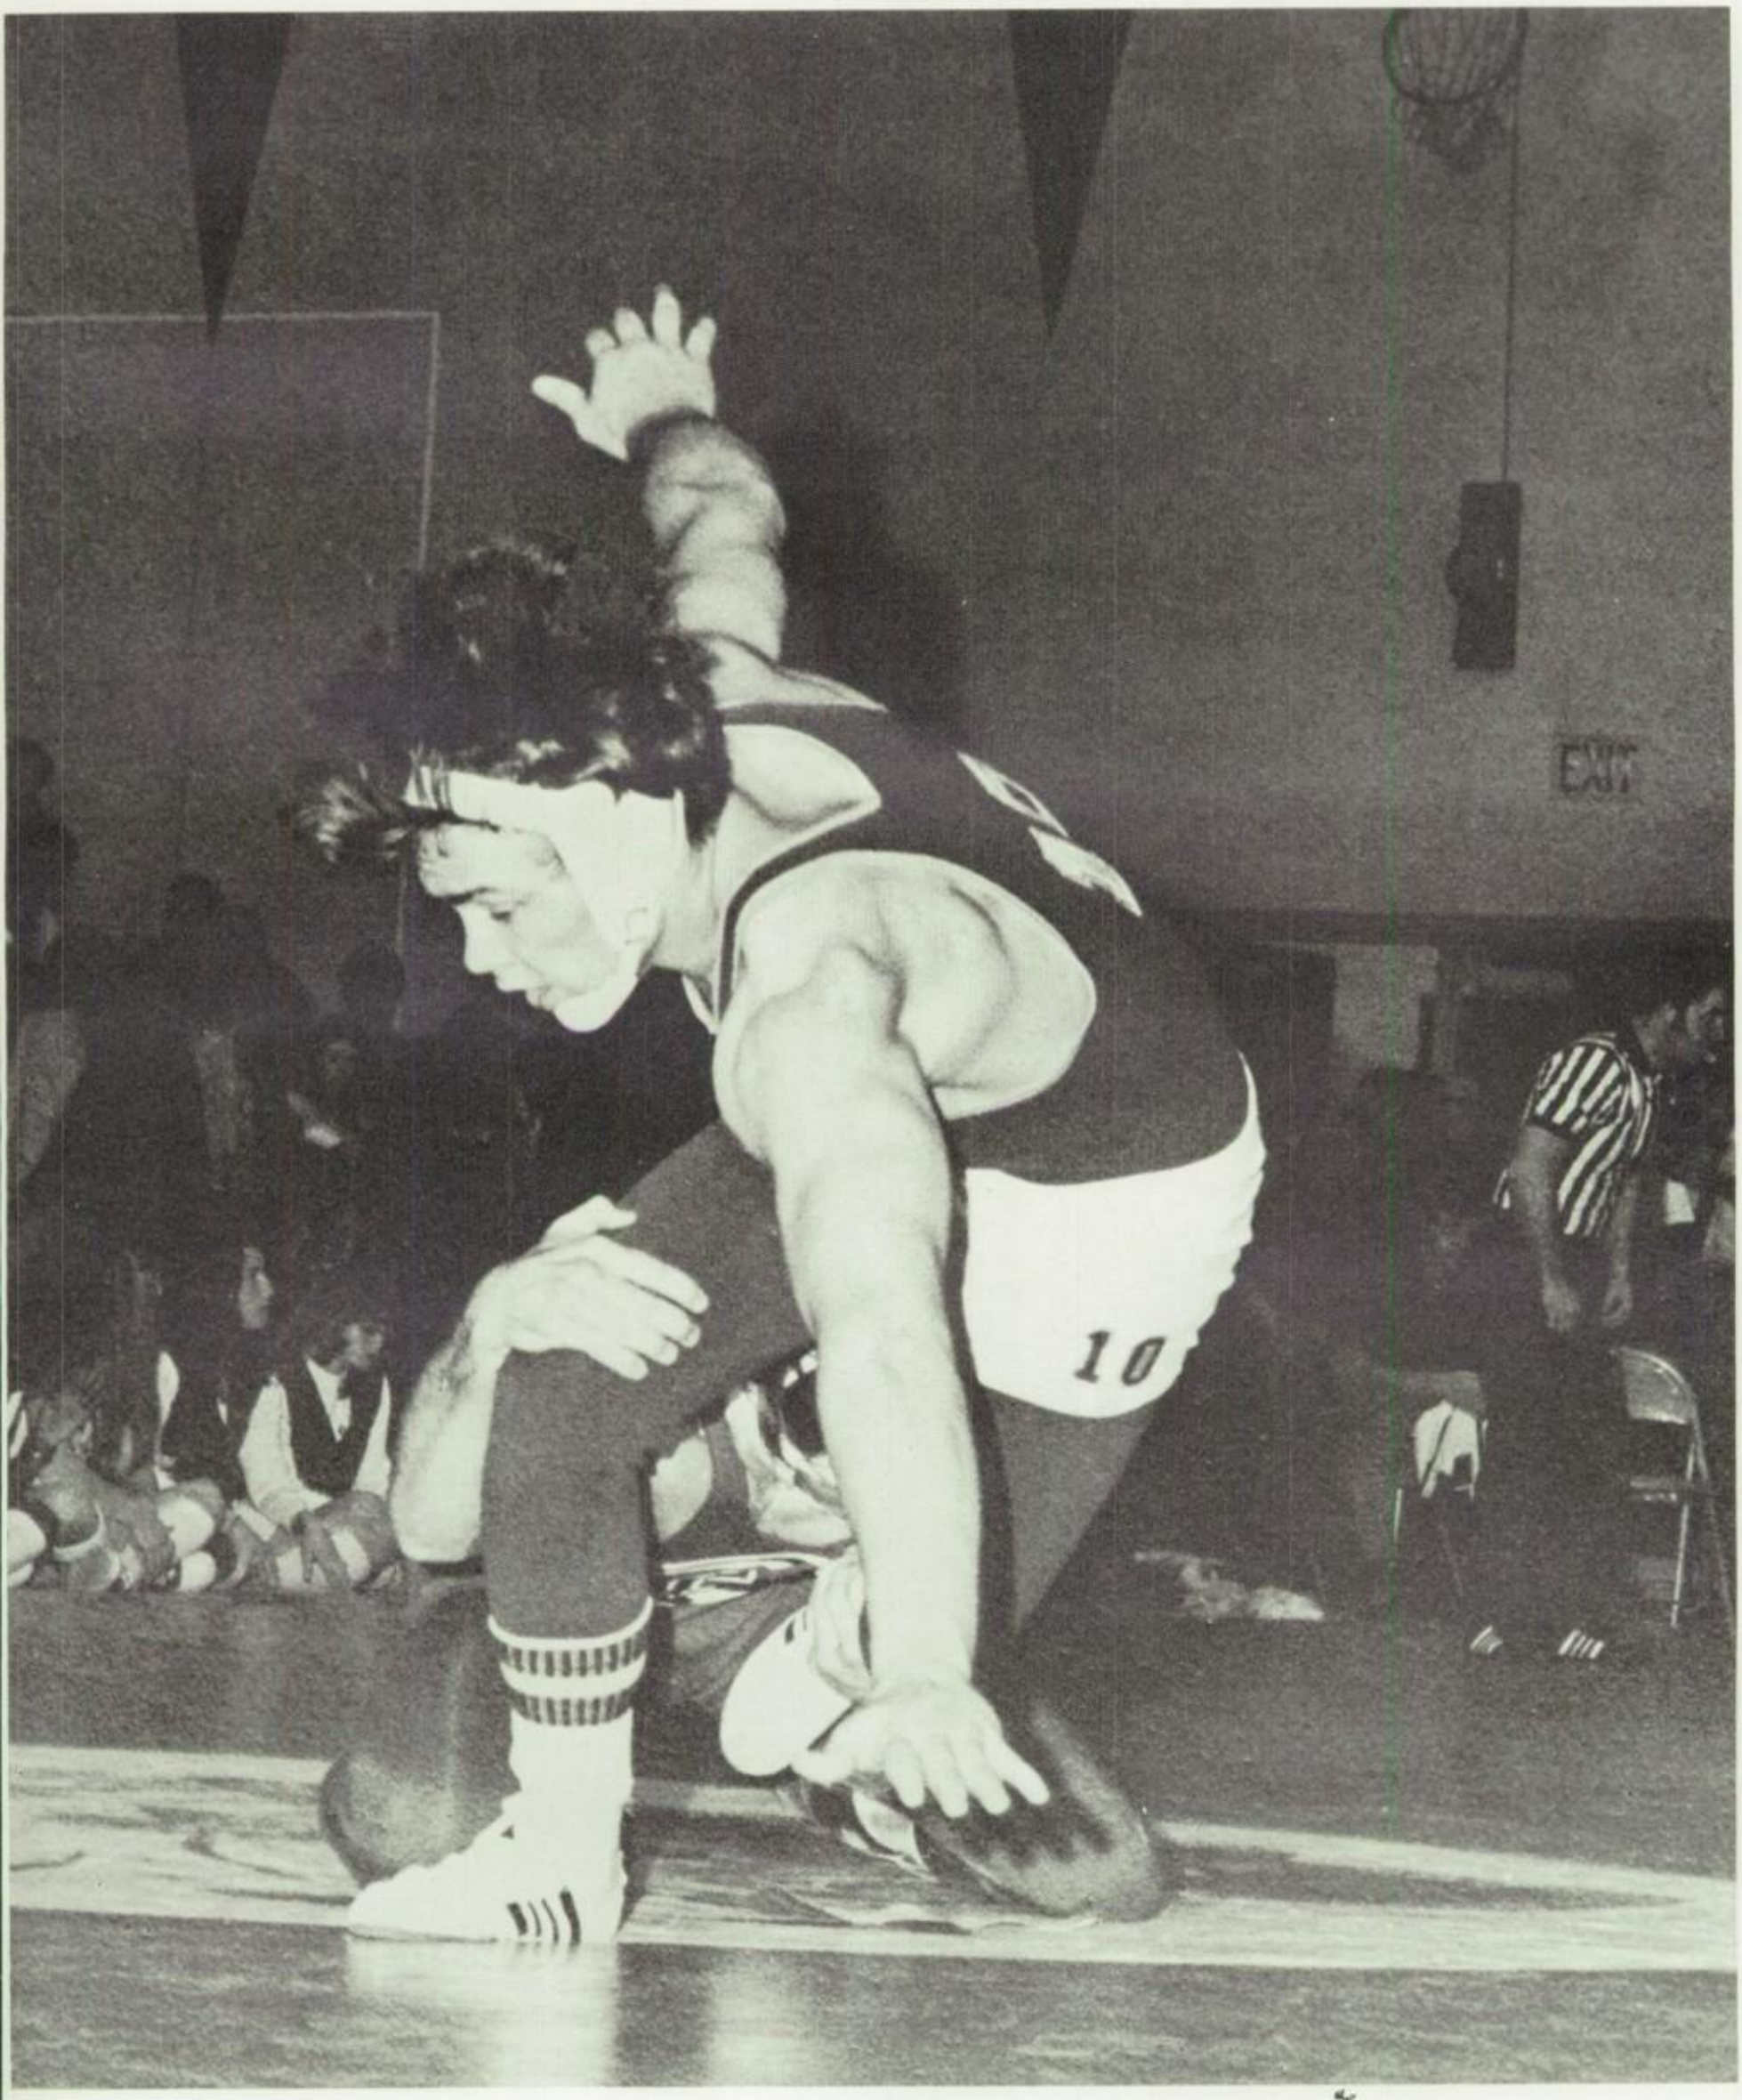
Steve Pate, 167 pounder, escapes from his Ft. Madison opponent in the first round of the district tournament.

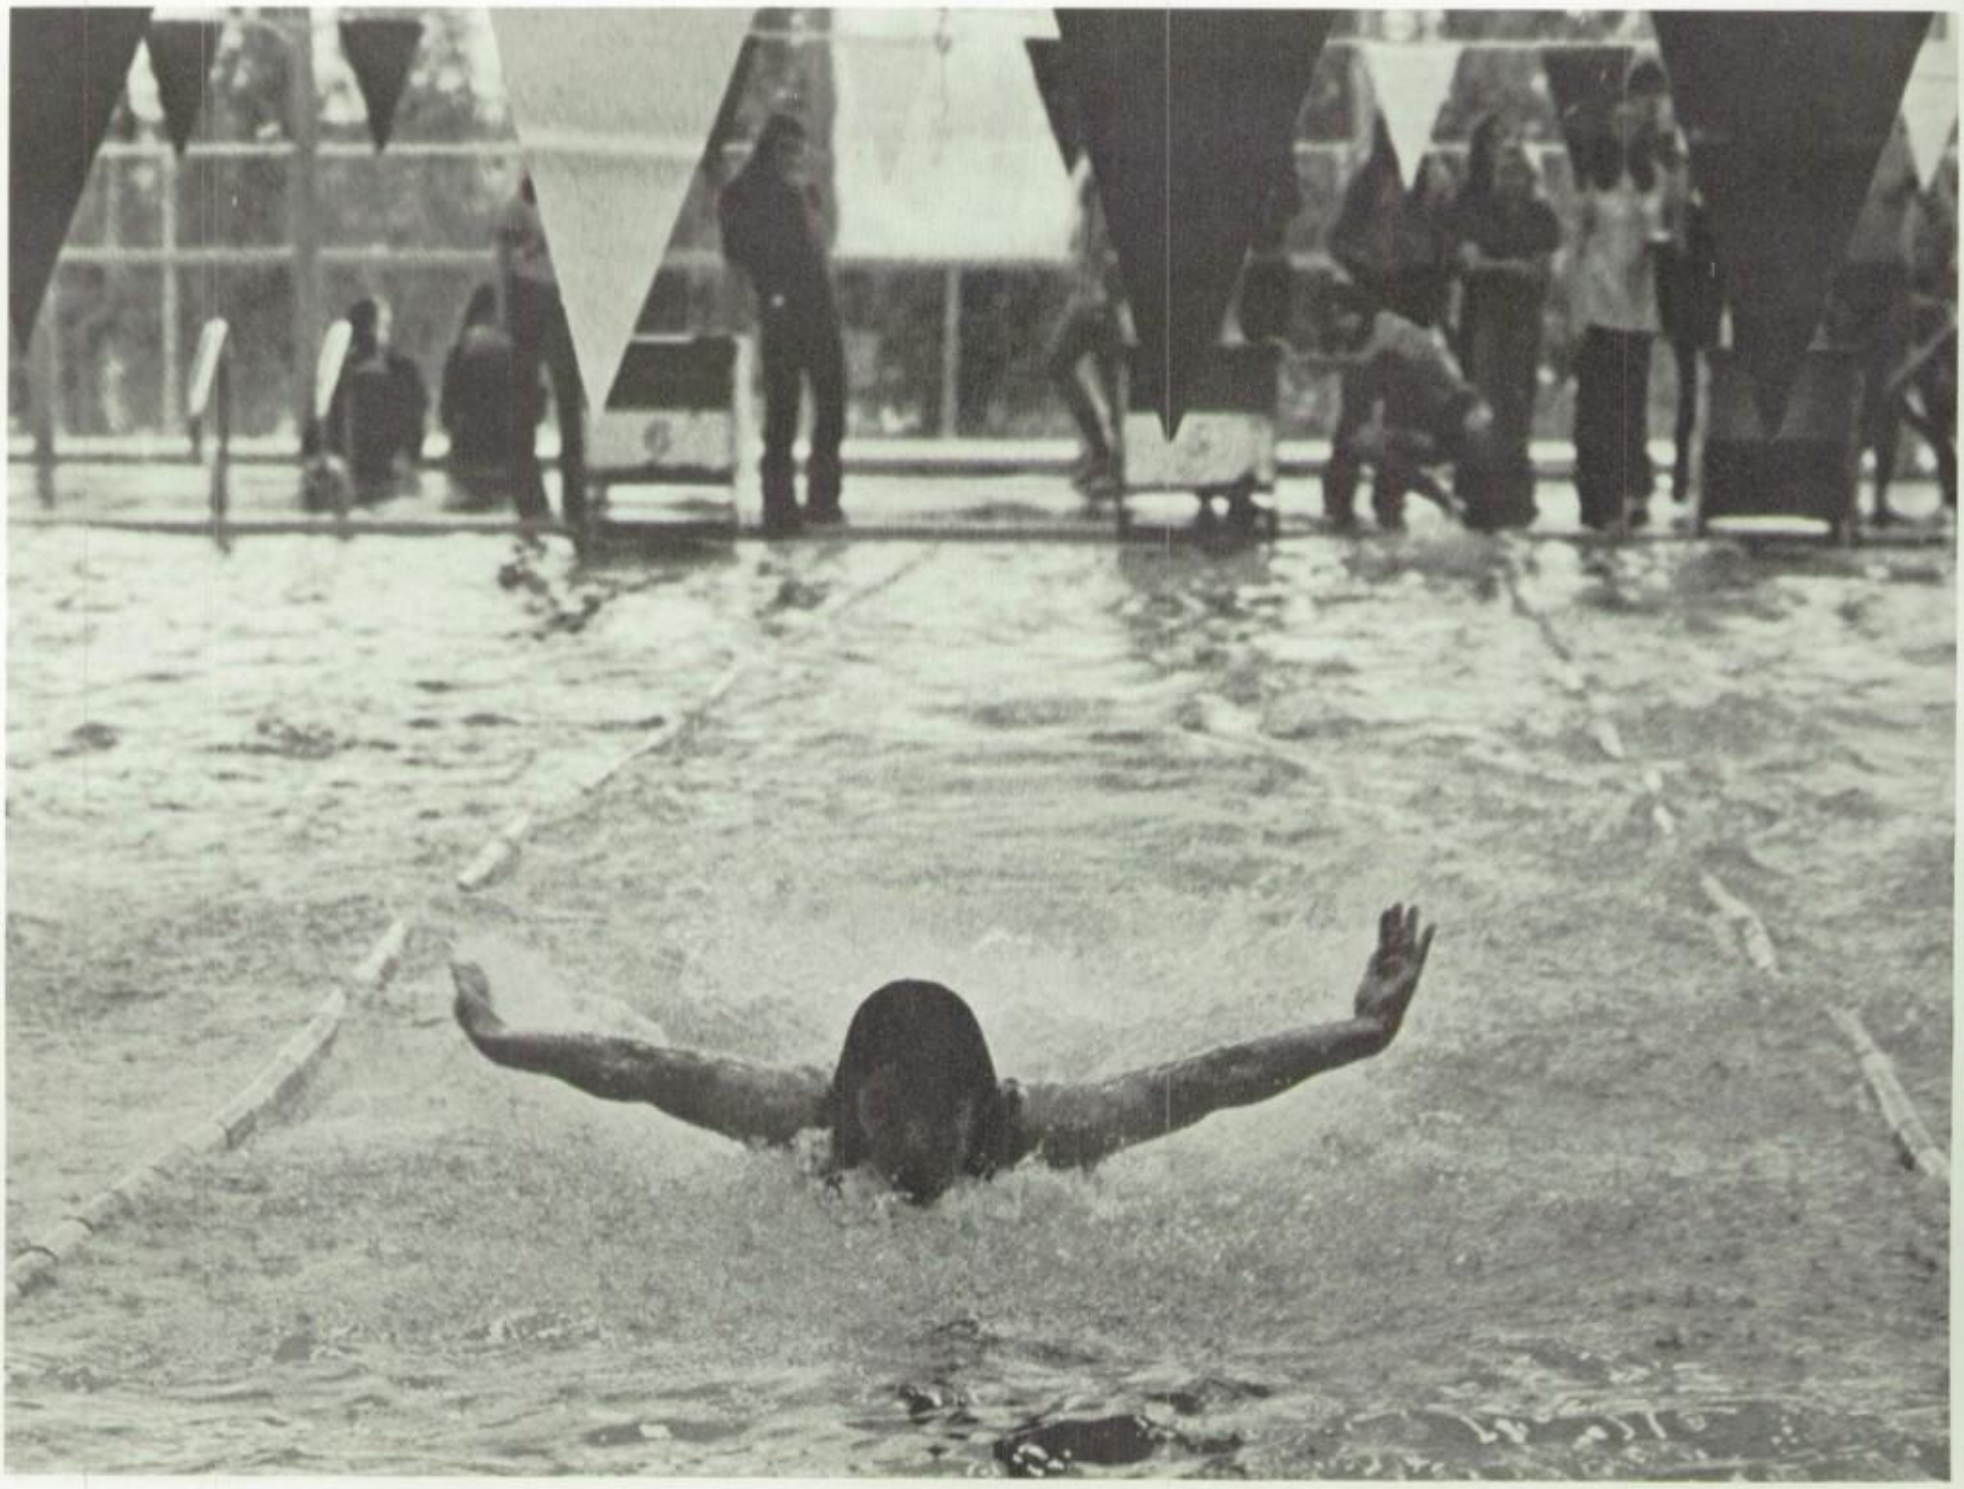


Fighting, the most valuable prizes are to be won

"Paddling their way to their most successful season yet with a 10-1 win loss record, the West boys' swimming team also placed 13th in state competition, their highest placing ever.

Leading the team in dual meet scoring was junior Dave Noble, who was the highest point scorer for the team. Dave swam three events throughout the season. He swam the 400 yd., 200 yd. and 100 yd. freestyle races. And also contributed to the effort of the 400 yd. relay team.

Also helping with point gathering for the team was one of two seniors, Captain Karl Moscrip, voted the most valuable team member at the winter sports banquet. Karl swam individual medley and backstroke in which he earned championships in MVC and district competition. He was also runner-up at the state meet in Ames.



The other senior on the team, Gene Gessner, was junior varsity captain, and led that section to an undefeated season.

Highlights of Coach Ralph Kryder's winningest season included a one time 5th place ranking in the state. This placing was arrived at through the power rating system. The standings of all the teams' times were compiled by Swim Inc. of Fort Dodge. This ranking was arrived at after the team returned from the Little Cyclone Invitation Swimming Meet at Ames. Another indicator of how well the tankers did is the record book: 17 new varsity records out of a possible 20 were set throughout the season, but the books do not show that records were broken 44 times for an average of 4 records per meet.

Perhaps the best earmark of the success of the tankers was the state meet. The team qualified 7 swimmers in 7 events plus 2 alternates out of one of the toughest districts in the state.

Top finishers included Karl Moscrip for backstroke and a 12th place finish in the 200 freestyle and 11th place finish in the 100 freestyle for Dave Noble. The two relays for West also placed within the top 12 at state. The medley relay consisting of Moscrip, sophomore Doug Schapiro, sophomore Roger Richardson, and junior Bill Gay placed 12th while the 400 freestyle relay placed 8th. The free relay included Dave Noble, Bill Gay, junior Brad Buchanan and freshman Jeff Noble. The alternates for the relays were Dave Adams for the free relay and Byron Wall for the medley relay.

Women of Troy travel to state, post 5-1 record for the season

In their second year of competition, the girls' volleyball team established one of this year's best team records on both the varsity and junior varsity levels and earned a berth in the state tournament. Utilizing nearly all of the thirteen players at various times during the season, the varsity had a 5-1 dual meet record. At the Lincoln Stanwood Invitational Tournament, played round-robin with seven other teams, West tied for first in number of wins but placed second in the tournament as more defensive points had been scored against them.

"West's Women of Troy," as they were labeled by the press, won their district tournament, defeating each of their six opponents. Thus they became one of sixteen teams taking part in the state tournament.

At state, held in Des Moines, the girls competed in a four team "pool" in the morning where they established a 3-3 record to advance to the quarter finals. Dubuque Hempstead ended all championship hopes by winning two straight games over West 15-7 and 15-9.

The junior varsity also established a 5-1 season's record. Various members of the squad played during varsity games and every j.v. played in at least two games at the district tournament.

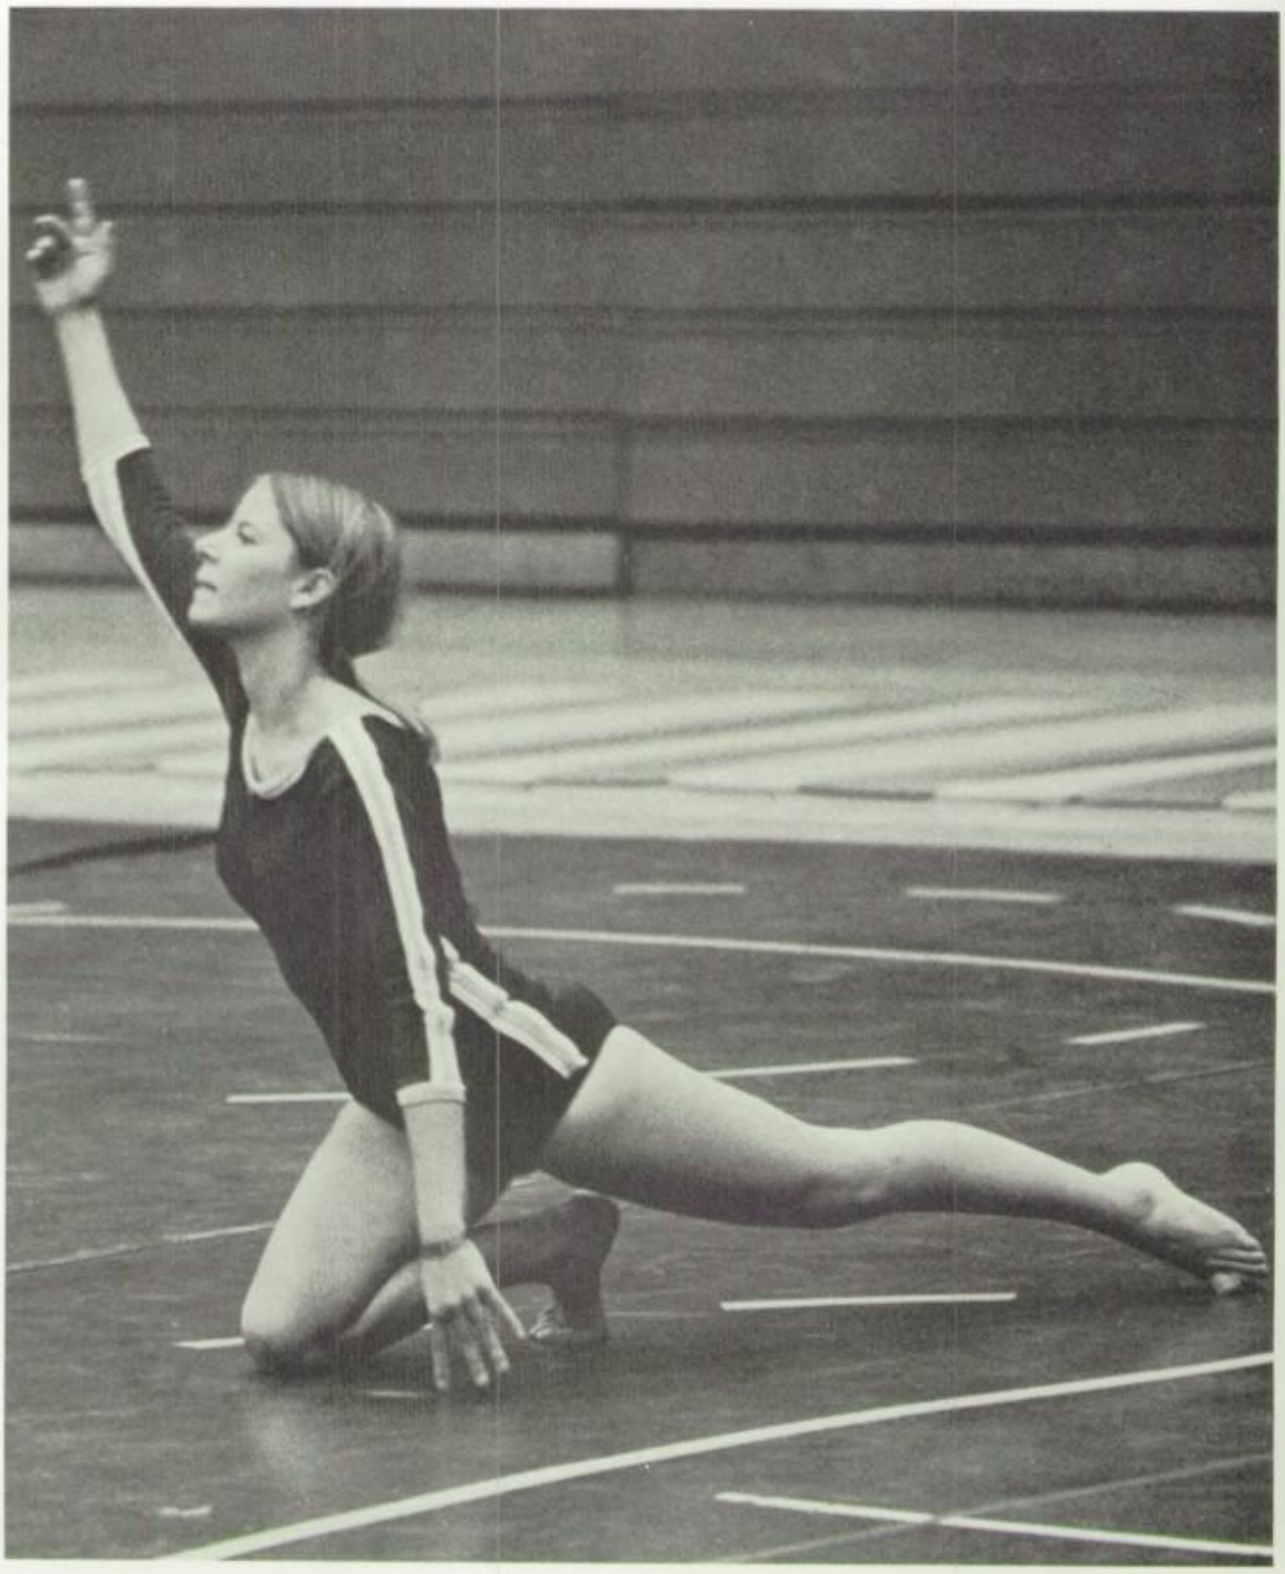
Right: Karen Forst looks on in amazement as Joanne Black goes over backwards to save the ball.

Girls compete

Flip-flop, back somey, eagle catch, hecht, walk-over — these are all part of the vocabulary of the girls' gymnastics team, terms describing moves many of them did during tumbling, floor exercise, or uneven parallel bar routines. In their second year of competition, the girls displayed these moves and many others during the nine meet season.

While the team's record was 1 win and one loss in dual meets, one win and several seconds and thirds in triangular meets, they were not able to advance anyone past the district meet and placed 8th out of ten teams at the Tipton Invitational, they had many outstanding individual efforts, earned two wins over City High and gained much experience. This is important since most of the 35 participants will be returning next year.

Several records were broken by two of the team's more consistent performers. Cindy Clark scored a record 7.6 out of a possible score of 10 in floor exercise competition and Diana Spector, voted next year's captain, totaled 310.05 points in all-round competition during the season to set a new school record. Coach Phyllis Urban was particularly pleased with both Cindy and Diana and was quite proud of the team's enthusiasm and dedication.



Jayne Miles concentrates on her next movement during her graceful floor exercise.

Fine art events shape special emphasis week

"What was the first play to ever be produced at West?" With this and many other questions, the First Annual Dr. IQ English Quiz between the juniors and seniors began the March Special Emphasis Week. Sponsored by the Scholarship Committee, these four days combined fine arts, current events, and a variety of other presentations for fun and learning.

For culture lovers there was music provided by the West High band and orchestra. The LIMBS dance troupe performed and the Old Creamery Theatre presented humorous cuttings from Shakespeare. Interpretive readings and a program of Ghanian dance by Pat Ampofo rounded out this part of the week. More informative presentations included those on African liberation movements, disarmament, Transcendental Meditation (given by Bruce Nagel) and a celebration of State Bird Day with wildlife movies, slides, and speakers.

Foreign flavor adds to International Days

West experienced a taste of foreign flavor when foreign exchange students from around Iowa visited West on International Day. A potluck dinner was held in their honor. Students from Germany, Sweden, Chili, Ghana, Swaziland, Brazil and Austria, participated in the nights activities of dancing and recreational games.

The exchange students also interacted in classrooms by discussing what their own countries were like with students. International activities proved to be interesting and enjoyable to those who participated.

Melodrama wins over all; valiantly praised by audience

The last play of the year, put on by the well known West High Drama Club, was the melodramatic "Firemans Flame."

Our Hero, Harry Howard (Tom Brown) and his Bluebird Volunteer Fire Dept. valiantly cheered onward, by the responsive audience, as they fought against the evil deeds of the Red Heart Volunteer Fire Dept., led by the no-count villain, Napoleon Markham (Mike Singer). Daphne Vanderpool (Jo Stidham) was the innocent heroine caught in the middle of things.Vesta Violet (Sue Neeley) is the instigator, behind the evil deeds, even more so than the villains. A number of other characters added to the highlight and success of the plot. Truly we cannot douse the "Firemans Flame" and stuff it in the dark, as it won over the humor, tears, and joy of all who viewed it.

Spring concerts add to season

Spring leads most students astray with its sweetly scented musical charms. The music department added its talents to spring's allure with several spring concerts and a tour.

The band presented its annual Pops Concert in April and continued toward summer with a more serious concert on May 17.

Orchestra members topped off their rewarding season with a final concert on May 22.

Traveling was the key word with the Chorus in the spring. Their concert tour in early May included stops at various Iowa high schools. As a prelude, they presented a concert of music for the tour.

Spring Thing a success in spite of cold and rain

Many had waited for the day of the "Spring Thing" and when it came, it brought with it ugly weather. In spite of the cold and rain, many hungry people came for the taste of the barbecued chicken. The rain soon halted any attempt to eat it outside or to start outdoor games, but it didn't stop the eating and, later, the dancing.

As he crossed over the bridge into the music-filled room, each person had the same compulsion: to move, to dance. The feeling was contagious and reverberated between the walls. As Axe played the old and new sounds, people felt compelled to talk or dance with total strangers and make new friends.

Being there meant you were something special; apart from the world. It was "our own" and a chance to get away from jobs, college worries and parents.

The mood was unusual. Everybody was one being, together. As more people came, the "whole" grew in size and spirit. The single entity ebbed and flowed with the music and was never quite lost when it was over. A part of it will always stay inside those who saw and felt it.

Contagious feeling felt as 'whole' grows in size

It was arranged like a childhood fantasy. Circus music, pictures and balloons. Then it changed, moving into the "now" time. Rock music poured out of a large hall. Below, ping pong and pool were in full swing. And, through the large windows, many watched friends splash and swim. New friends were discovered and old ones misplaced in the shuffle. At the end, it was like walking out of a dream and back into reality.

Fighting exhaustion and other effects of the previous evening, over thirty seniors celebrated their graduation with an early morning breakfast at the West overlook of the Reservoir.

Huge skillets full of scrambled eggs and bacon were cooked over a wood fire and eaten with juice and sweet breads.

Graduation; the final ceremony

Despite mechanical difficulties which seemed to plague Commencement '73, the ceremony became a delightful combination of modern mixed with the traditional as graduating seniors marched down the aisle for the last time.

Senior class president, Alan Huey welcomed the huge audience on a typically hot, sunny May day.

Traditional affair blends old, new in last march

Parents, relatives, and friends crowded West's gym to see a parade of green caps and gowns march down the aisle to the traditional tune, 'Pomp and Circumstance.'

West seniors decided that graduation should be a reflection of thoughts. So instead of the traditional commencement speaker seniors participated in making their own program. The theme—"Reflections of Today and Visions of Tomorrow." Poems, songs, speeches, created a menagerie of feeling as seniors said goodbye to West and hello to a range of new experiences.

Diplomas, the much awaited sign that seniors had made it, were given out by Phillip Leff, President of the Board of Education. As the last diploma was given out, a resounding cheer from all 240 graduates as they realized that their high school career was finally culminating.

As the seniors marched out, relief, euphoria, nostalgia, collected in their thoughts as they turned in their caps and gowns.

Thoughts, then turned to celebration as visions of parties danced merrily in every graduate's head.

The graduating class of '73 walked out the door with nothing but an empty gym full of memories left behind them.

Ten to state as records fall

Returning lettermen and a competitive group of sophomores, led West High's track team to a strong season. Twenty-two seniors provided the experience needed to push the Trojans to its best season since the school opened.

Records were broken in many events throughout the season including, the 100 and 220 yard dash both by Don Rhinehart, who was one of the top sprinters in the state. Also the mile run, two mile, 880 and the medley relays were broken, all of which made the season one to be remembered.

The Trojans also won the first annual "Chick" Forwald Relays which was held on the University track. West's overall record was 5-1, which doesn't include their fifth place finish in the conference indoor and second in the District Meet, both bests for a West High team.

The District Meet saw us send the most men to state also for a West High team. Those who qualified for state were, Jeff Hartzler in the mile run, Mark Parker in the 880, and the mile medley and 2 mile relays. Don Rhinehart in the 220 yard dash. In Field events Bruce Barnes and Larry Lindell both qualified in the high jump. Making a total of 1-0 who competed in state held for the first time at the Drake Stadium.

Houghton takes first as singles state champ

A state singles championship for Jim Houghton and a fourth place state finish for the doubles team of Paul Maxwell and Craig Becker ended the season for the boys' tennis team. Compiling a 12-1 dual meet record, the netmen lost only to Valley champions Bettendorf. They also won the Cedar Rapids Quadrangular.

Houghton, a senior who played number one, ended his high school career with a 58-1 four year over-all singles record. Other varsity team members were Becker, Maxwell, Chuck Vernon, Charlie Hale and Tim Grady.

Coach Ed Foraker also led the junior varsity to an undefeated season.

First male coach; team posts winning record

Pretty, graceful and good are words that can be used to describe the '73' girls tennis team, but at the same time words like strong and hard-to-beat are just as accurate. This year's team for the first time in West girls tennis history, was under the coaching of a male, Mr. Rodney Lanagan.

The team practices an hour before school and another hour after school. This leaves out the countless hours each puts in on her own, practicing her serves, rallies, lobs, slices and other tennis "techniques". Such dedication at the game has paid off in a winning 7-4 record for the West High tennis girls.

Plagued boys place second in sectionals

Plagued by bad weather and a slow start the Trojan golfers could only muster a 3 and 5 season record. But the struggling golfers pulled together in the sectional meet by taking second place from four other teams that had previously beaten them in dual meets during the regular season. Coach Harry Dean commented "We probably played the best golf of the season in the sectional meet." Seniors Tom Huber, Jim Bane, Gene Gessner, Mark Stasi and sophomore Tom Schuerman turned their aggressive scoring into a first place lead in the district meet after nine holes only to lose it on the back nine and finish the season fourth in the district.

Practicing at Fairview Golf Course the Trojanettes received assistance from the new girls golf coach, Dean Frerichs. This year's squad consisted of 15 members who found it tough to practice with bad weather halting play.

Hopeful for a first or second in the sectional meet, held at Muscatine, the girls finished with a disappointing sixth place. However with all of the six top golfers returning next year the future looks bright.

"Puff, pant, puff." These were familiar sounds of the new West High Girls track team. The girls were introduced to many unfamiliar events: hurdles, shot put, discus, and running broad jump. Jogging in sweats around West's new girls track, the front lawn, they put in long hours of hard work. For being in their first year the team did very good. They recorded a record of 3-3 in dual meets, and beat City High five out of the six times they met them. The team looks like a great head start of the coming years. Next year more girls will know the rules, so more time can be spent on endurance, rather than on technique.

Talented crew heads '73 season

With the most talented baseball team West has ever had, this season promises to be one of the best. Several veterans, backed by a strong junior core, has everyone scrapping for a position.

An attitude of hustle and spirit backed by a strong amount of optimism will give this team a shot at the top. Despite last year's disappointing season, coach Ray Randall feels his players have gained valuable experience.

Everything considered, the 1973 season could be very productive for both Randall and his talented staff.

Assuming a playing position, Jerry Rathmel prepares for fielding action.

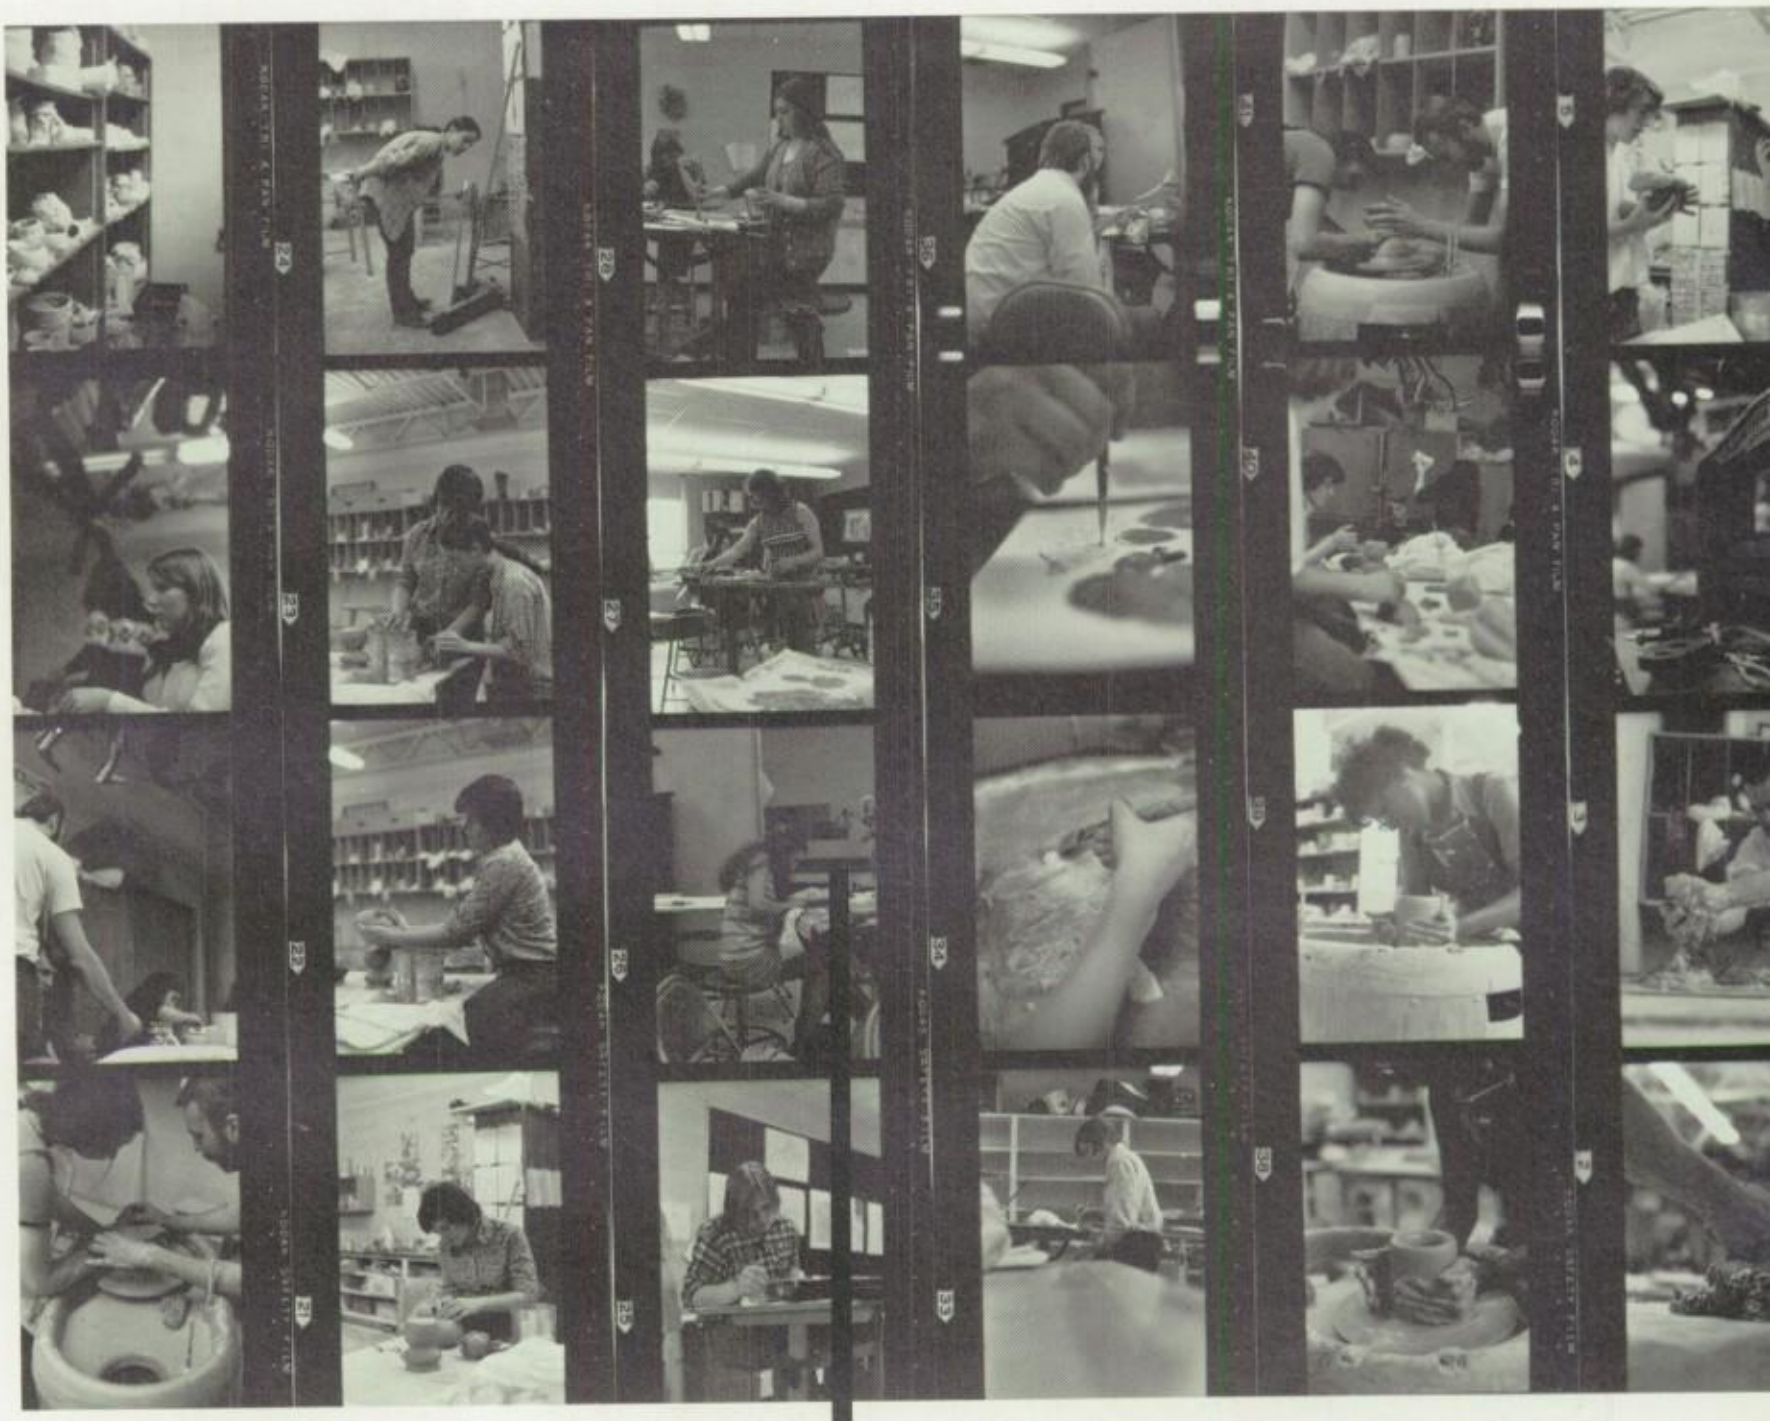
New for Girls—Softball Enthusiasm high

Think of 31 enthusiastic girls wildly throwing and hitting softballs. This is the scene for the new girls' softball season. Softball was added to this year's expanded girl's athletic program.

Coach of the Women of Troy, Rod Lanagan, thinks many playing positions could change during their 17 game schedule. He feels that in their initial season they should do a fair job of handling competitors.

The Trojanettes are eager about using their very own softball diamond. It is located on the lower practice fields. In addition, the girls are awaiting new green and gold softball uniforms.

Inexperience seems to be a problem as most of the girls have had little or no previous experience. However the large number of freshmen and sophomores out this year will play a key role in the coming seasons.



Studio art provides students with many areas of study, including pottery and painting.

ACADEMICS

Barb Rogers is found concentrating on speed typing in Typing II class.

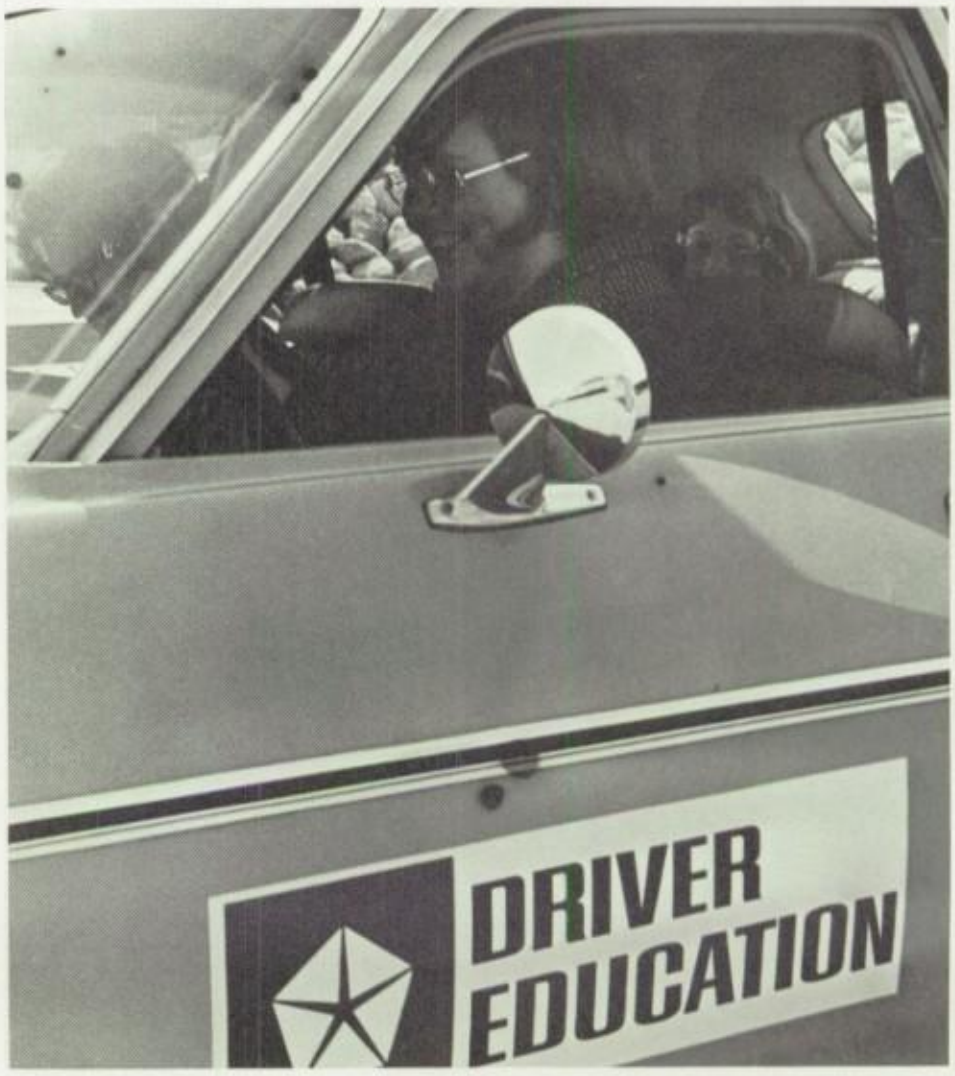
Obtaining useful skills for future careers

Whether tapping wildly in the typing room or figuring madly for accounting, students learn from business education classes. Through these courses students obtain useful skills for school or future careers.

After learning the basic classes, such as typing and business machines, students can take office simulation. This is designed to give students an experience in the office. All the students in the class were given specific jobs and a mock company was formed. Through this they learned basically how a company is run. Business education courses help the student pursue jobs or continue their education after leaving High School. Office laboratory gave them the chance to practice their skills in the office of West. Business management gave a background for future studies in business.

The simulator was one of the many classrooms visited by parents on back to school night.

Lori Hebl's attempt at parallel parking makes everyone smile.



Simulator, mild jerks all part of course

Almost every hour of the day this year a gold or green car crept slowly out of the back parking lot. Kids leaving school early? No. The Driver's Ed cars were setting out. In 50 minutes they would return, with students hopefully having mastered one more driving skill.

Through actual driving experience, simulation in the trailer behind the building and classroom discussions and lectures, students were hopefully taught how to drive. Sophomores, junior and even some seniors were enrolled in the class.

Many amusing things happen each year in Driver's Ed. Hilarious (though it may not seem so at the time) is the practice on standard shift cars. Lucky students got by with a couple mild jerks as the car was started. Others gave all passengers in the car whiplash as they jerked from one gear to the other. Killing the car was a constant problem. Records went as high as 10 or 11.

Academics learn to cook, talk

Home economic courses maintained a busy, active atmosphere all year. A wide variety of sights, smells and sounds flowed through the rooms, revealing the department's purpose.

In sewing, students often worked their way through a chain of courses, which includes Textiles 1 and 2 and tailoring, until they attained their goals.

Deep voices of male students were common as junior and senior boys explored the fundamentals of cooking in bachelor foods. They enjoyed many successful meals, including dinner at the Carousel.

The appetizing smell of sizzling bacon and the polluting odor of burnt cake emphasized the achievements and failures of the girl's cooking classes.

Home economics offered not only school courses, but a chance to employ many of the useful arts at home.

"Guten Tag," "Bonjour," "Buenos dias," "Salute." These phrases are commonly heard as many students strive to be bi-lingual. Teachers combined the tedious, yet worthwhile, grammar drills and earphones with gourmet dinners, seasonal celebrations and special units.

German students were surprised with Christmas presents from Saint Nickolas while a pinata filled with candy was part of the fun at the Spanish Christmas party.

Students taking French prepared and feasted on a dinner with foreign foods. Several of them attended a French play put on in Pella, Iowa. Latin classes concentrated on vocabulary and sentence structure. They did, however, find time for a Latin celebration, the Ides of March.

Refinishing old items can prove to be quite a job but Mike Mellecker smiles as he finds it's easier than he expected.

Doing instead of watching; using the head and hands

Boasting new and creative ideas, industrial education changed and implemented courses and projects. In beginning classes basic skills and techniques are taught. This year a mass production project was tried out with great success. Wood shop made items such as cheese cutting boards and doggy hors d'oeuvre trays while metal shop made medallions for key chains. Profits were used for a picnic and softball game.

Education in industrial arts has grown from the stage of wooden wall plaques and screwdrivers to some very sophisticated projects. Hope chests were popular among the girls and creations ranged from baseball bats to bars.

Viewing their accomplishments, industrial education classes are involved with people doing things instead of just watching.

More than a library and audio-visual center, the Instructional Materials Center, or IMC, has combined many and varied learning experiences for students this year.

The IMC contains the traditional books, periodicals, pamphlets, filmstrips, records, transparencies, tapes, slides, maps and the equipment needed to use them. Carrels and desks for quiet study and conference rooms for discussions, offer students the type of area needed for their work.

But the IMC is more than just a place for regular study. It offers a wide variety of experiences and services. Changing combinations of current information and objects are displayed near the circulation desk. Art works appear throughout the area as well as copy service available to all students.

English on the secondary level employs eyes, fingers, tongues

Conscious eyes, talented fingers and spirited tongues, are what the English classes supplied students with this year. The department offered a variety of courses to choose from in terms of reading, writing and speaking. With such a wide range of classes, students found fulfilling their requirements worthwhile.

Some classes carried their traditional format. Journalism, besides putting out the newspaper, allowed students to experiment on their own. By selling advertisements and forming their own staff, journalism students put out private publications. Some were not only distributed to West but to all high school students in Iowa City.

Humanities tried something different permitting classes to choose new decades besides the 20's and 30's. This year they could also study the 40's or 50's. Films, demonstrations and research papers added to the student's awareness of changing times.

Added to the list of courses at West was Linguistics. This new class dealt with the origin and different aspects of language. Students found various speakers offered help in understanding communication.

The basic classes were still offered including English 10, which allowed students to enjoy pastimes of reading, show creative writing and speaking ability and learn more about literature in general.

Top: When the craving for a bridge game occurs, the Language Arts-Social Studies resource centers are as good as anyplace.

Far left: Traditional German costumes were worn, as shown by Dr. Workman, when the German and Humanities classes celebrated the Oktoberfest.

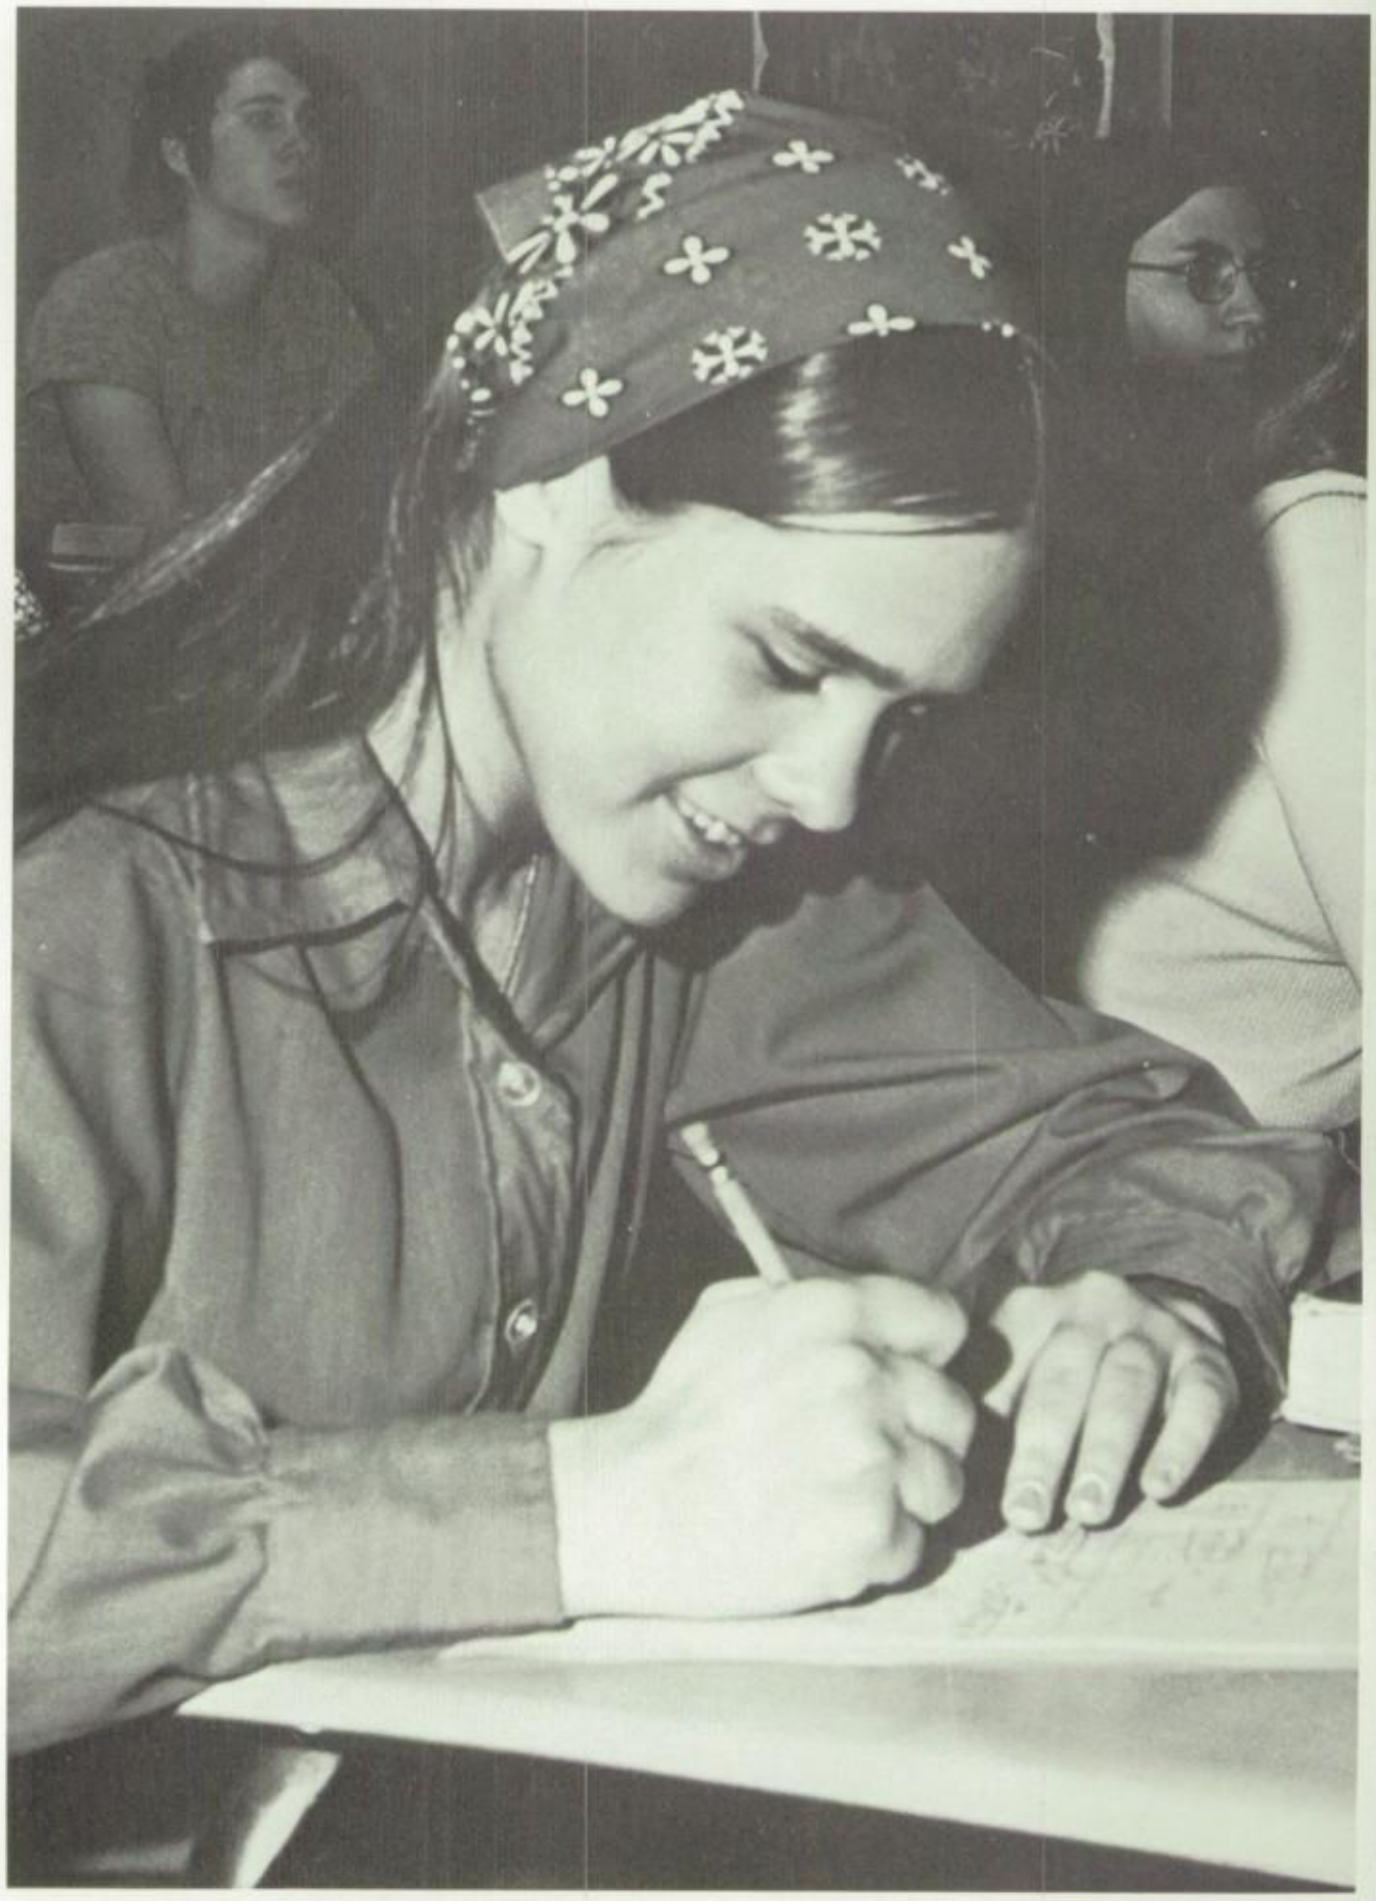
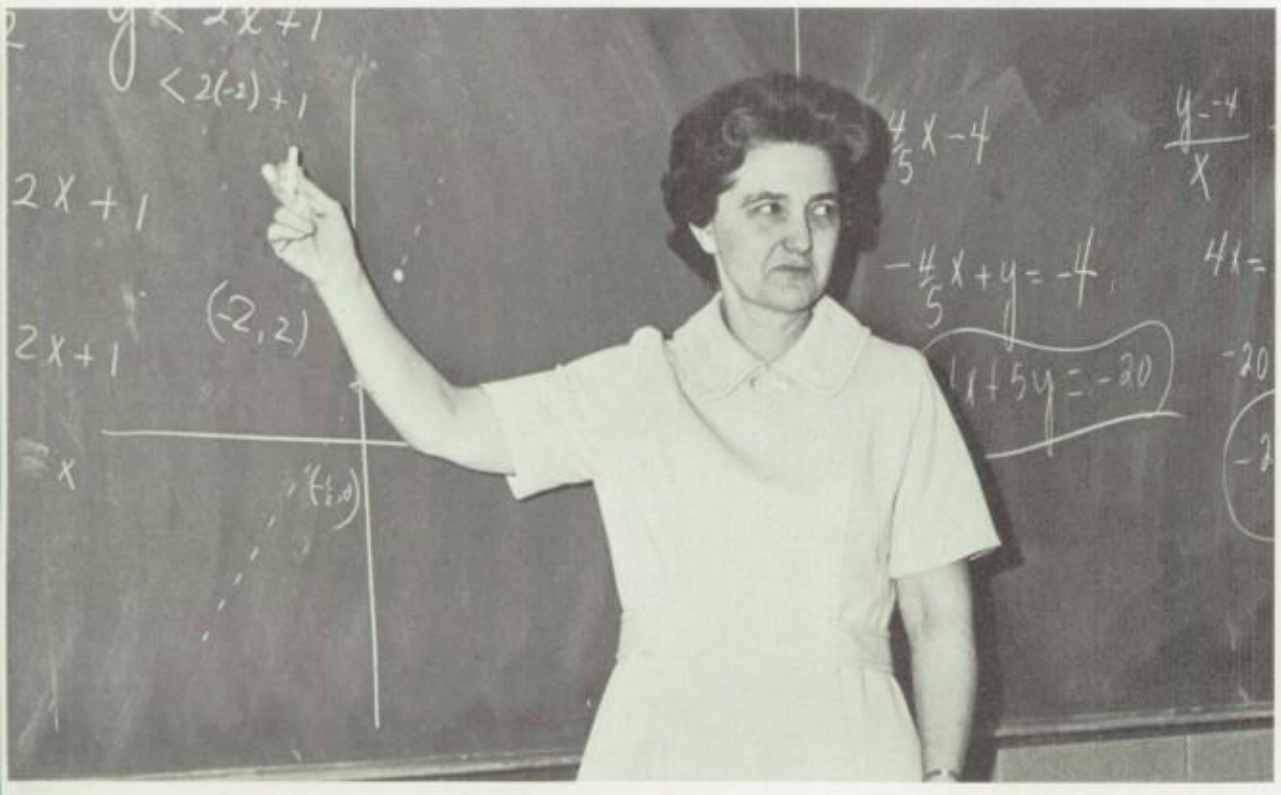
The "universal language" expands new programs



Julie Mason takes notes during a geometry lecture because when it comes to studying no one can remember everything.



Teaching the only "universal language" in a variety of ways was the main theme of the math department. Math teachers hoped to bridge the communication gap this year; not only between different languages but also between the students' varying capabilities.

Students worked in the specific areas of computer programming and analysis, or stopped with the basics. Math was left up to the students. They were dealt with as individuals.

Geometry and algebra instructors challenged their students with sets, subsets and postulates. Although these problems didn't always seem relevant, the courses usually proved to be interesting.

Mathematically orientated students expanded their knowledge with analysis computer programming, or probability and statistics. They found these courses useful in considering greater job opportunities in areas such as science and industry.

Discovering the difficulties of Algebra 4, Mark Golden is assisted by student teacher Mr. Odegard.

Miss Greenwald attempts to explain the concepts of Geometry but with an expression of difficulty.

Lora Gingrich waits for Dr. Comstock's cue during the winter chorus-orchestra concert.

Moods of music recall memories and impressions

Music is an experience. It is the only art that is changed each time it is played. It flows, then disappears, forever lost to space and time. It is never quite the same yet has similarities. Some West students describe it as "hairy", informal, or selfsatisfying, but most see it as a form of expression.

A musical experience can be unforgettable. Most West High band members will agree that one such experience was playing in the finale of the University of Iowa production of "The Music Man".

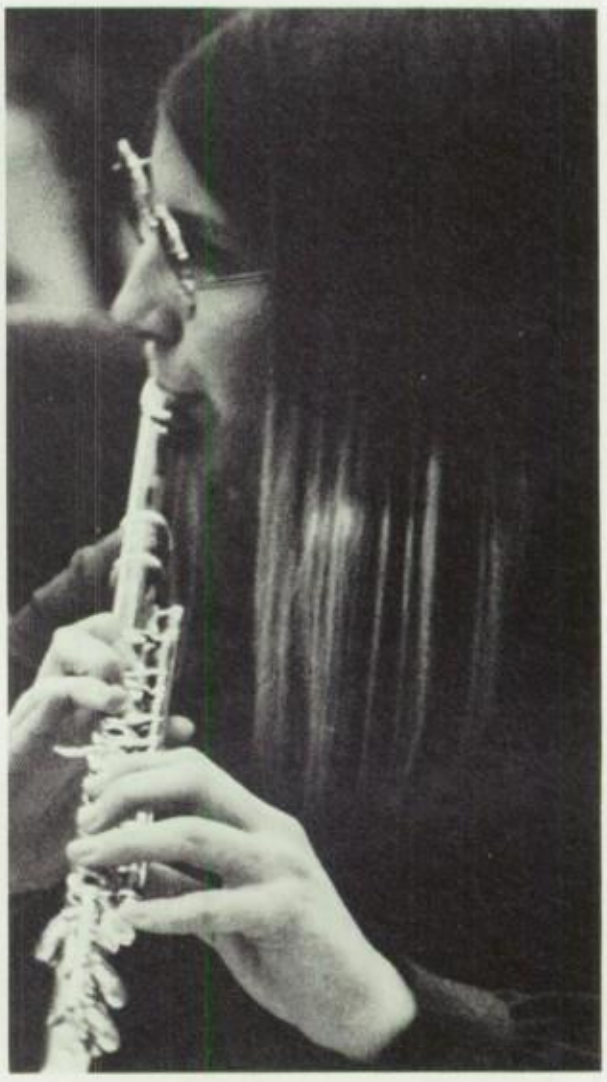
Lasting impressions can be made by not only the "expression" of music, but also the hard work needed to put out the finished product. Both reasons will cause the opera "La Traviata" to leave a lasting impression on the members of the West High orchestra and the West High Chamber Singers.

The high point in pursuit of musical endeavors for some is the mark of achievement. The chorus found achievement in being selected to sing with the orchestra at the Iowa State Music Teachers annual convention in Des Moines.

Many students study music for the joy of expression. Others try to convey a feeling to others. Whatever the motivation, this year, musically, has left a special mark on those touched by its mood and impact.

Left: In the seclusion of a practice room, Debbie Hering works to perfect her combination of voice and accompaniment.

Bottom: The world of music fascinates Debbie Dee as she plays her flute during a concert.



Audrey Desterhaft, Tracy Hirt and David Kacena take time out for a little relaxation before another chorus practice of "Salvation".

New procedure introduced; pick different activities

Crouched half-naked on a chilly drafty floor among a horde of others, you're by yourself because they're strangers. The hollow echoing sounds of bouncing balls and shrill alphabetized name-calling assault your shallow air of confidence and reinforce the feeling that, after all, in most things, you're alone.

Certain indignities of gym class, no matter what the changes, still exist and must be endured. But at West, many were counteracted and avoided this year thanks to a most voluble student body and an alert group of staffers who realized that the hot game in gym class has always been skipping, attempted skipping, and more skipping, and apathy the most heeded teacher.

A completely new procedure was introduced for West juniors and seniors this year to deal with these problems. Every six weeks students were able to choose from a variety of four different activities, either co-ed or not, individual or group, popular or un. These activities have ranged from archery to volleyball, genuine lane bowling to yoga, "slim 'n trim" to softball.

Apathy still exists in regard to gym class. It is not uncommon to overhear a pitying commiseration being given to someone who has just announced that he has gym class next hour. But the strikingly improved attendance records over the last year show that students feel they are getting something; at least an attempt is being made. Sometimes the choice in gym class, like politics, comes down to a lesser of two evils . . . but even so, the choice is available for every individual to make.

ar Left: Fencing proved to be an ntriguing new sport for many, as shown by hese two boys.

Individualized projects replace structured class

Bottom: Greta Hoak checks the temperature of a chemical solution during chemistry.

Bottom right: There's always excitement in the biology room as Mr. Dye and Jerri Stutts exhibit their pet snake.

Unpleasant odors, students in goggles and scientists busily measuring and mixing strange ingredients may be found on the bottom floor of West. Such occurrences are typical of the science classes.

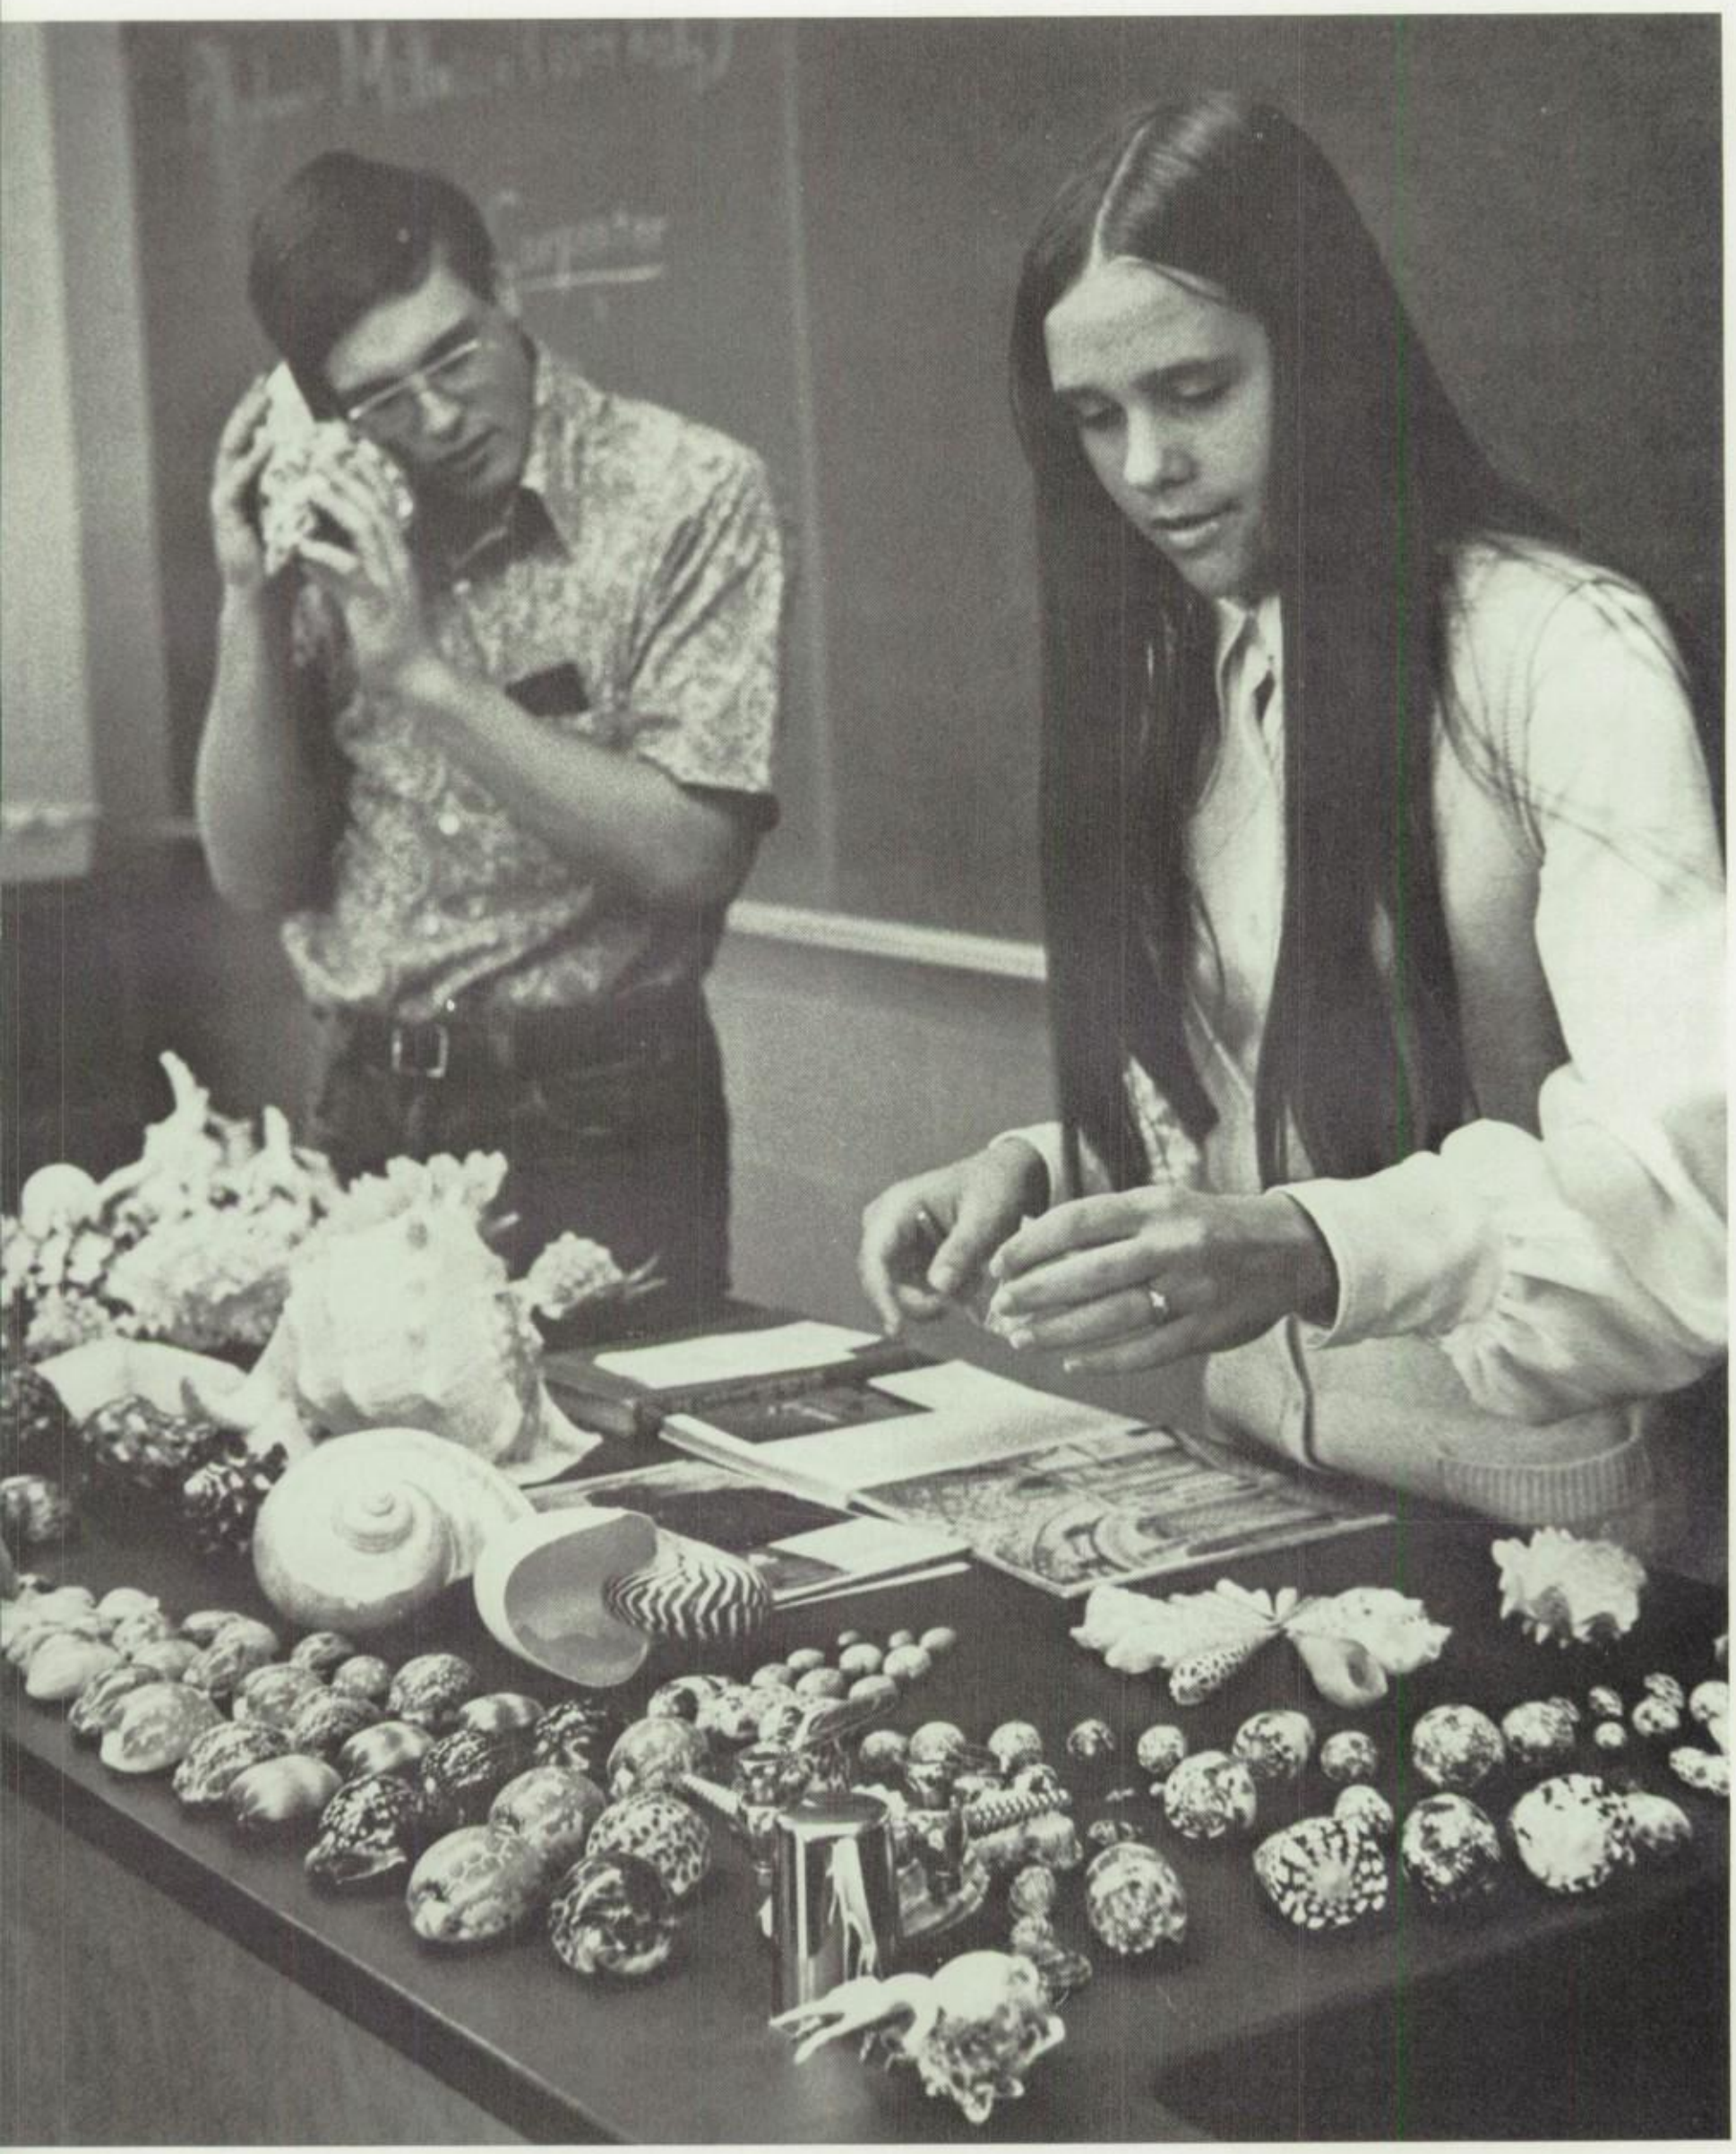
Individualized learning is encouraged as a new approach to science. Biology offered students a chance to follow their own interests and choose from a variety of units.

A Look At Man, new this year, allowed students to contract for their grade and work in whatever area of ecology they wished.

Earth Science utilized field trips, labs and individualized projects. By the end of the year, the classes had a better understanding of the earth and space.

Many hours were spent studying the elements and chemical reactions by the chemistry students. Their mistakes could hardly be concealed as the odors filtered through the halls.

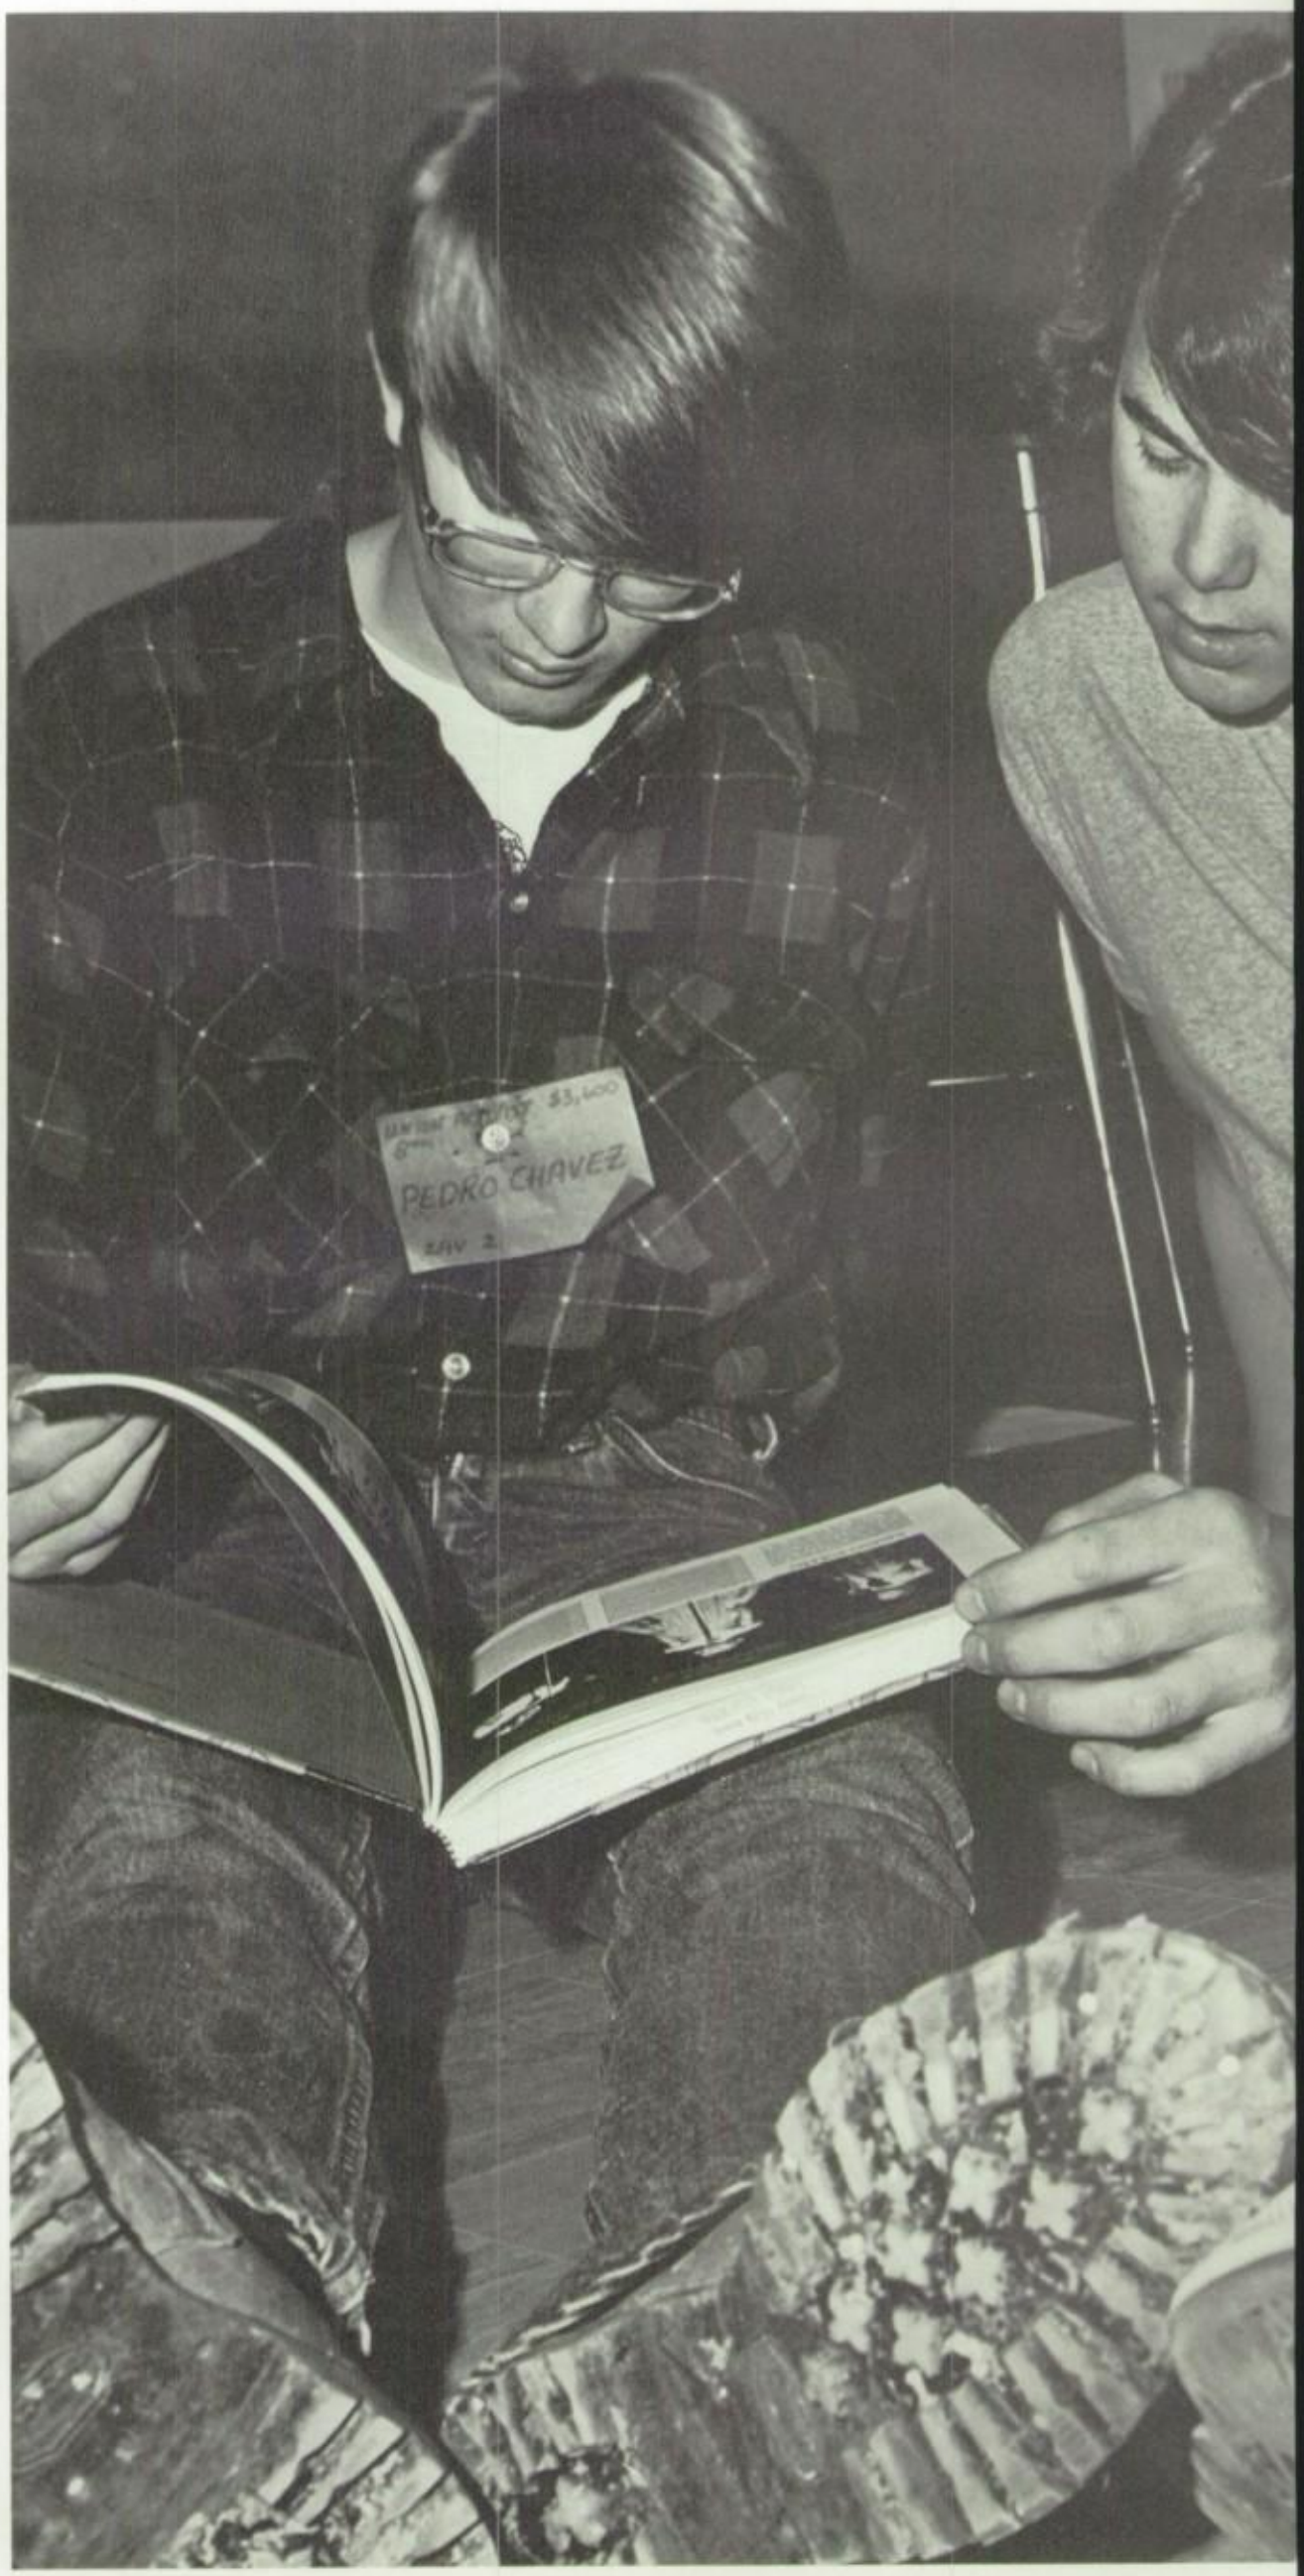
Physics dealt with specific concepts and theories. This expanded knowledge enabled students to orient their lives toward science.

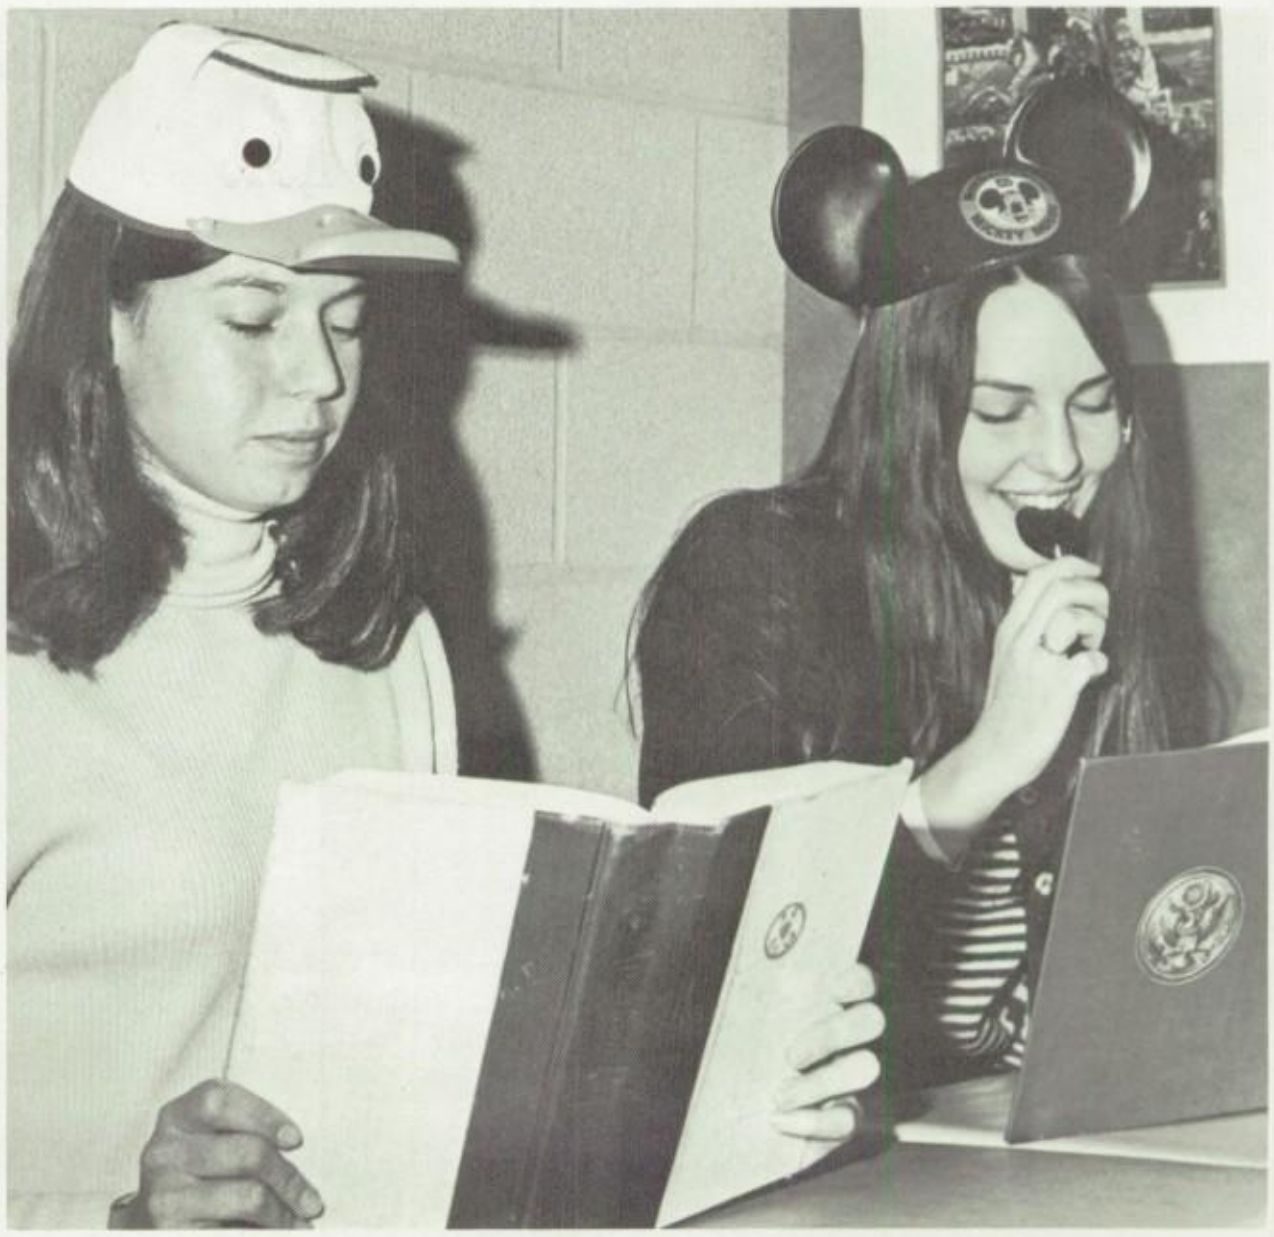


With great concentration, Julie Mason and Myron Smalley try to sort out the wide variety of sea shells.

Right: To achieve a greater understanding of minority groups, Jerry Halvorsen and Curt Skay participated in the "Sunshine Stimulation Game", where they played roles of people in minority groups.

Bottom: Georgia Berry tabulates her data for psychology.





Studying for history requires the use of unusual thinking caps as shown by Paula Hanson and Cathy Keys.

Current events stimulate student discussion and outside activities

Current events; current problems; past events, historic conditions, why we behave as we do, man's values and and customs; these were just some of the things discussed in social studies courses this year.

Topics in the news were the subject of discussion in Reading in National Affairs and Reading in World Affairs. Going to hear Senator McGovern speak was a class activity in National Affairs. In Government many lively discussions were sparked by current events. One of the major topics was the elections of 1972.

American History was a required class for all juniors and seniors that had not already taken it. In Mr. Zeigler's class students participated in simulation activities and concentrated on conditions existing during different periods. Reading and discussing were the primary learning activities in Western Society 1 and 2, Survey of Western Society and Comparative Non-Western Cultures.

Psychology and Sociology definitely were favorite classes. Students in Psychology examined human behavior while Sociology students learned of man's values and behavior.

Opportunities for career offered; Kirkwood

West High offers not only straight academic opportunities, but also opportunities for professional training in the Career Education Department.

Trade and Industrial Education (T and I) is for students planning to enter a skilled or technical trade. Students interested in business, business management or marketing are in Distributive Education (DE). In Day Trade Auto Mechanics, students study the mechanical operation of the automobile and acquire repair and overhauling skills.

T and I and DE are programs made possible by the cooperative efforts of West and the employer. These programs include a daily one hour classroom instruction period and three hours a day of on-the-job training. Students in Auto Mechanics receive all of their practical training by working in the community.

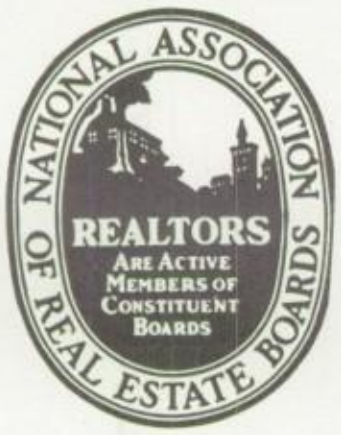
IOWA CITY BOARD OF REALTORS



The decision to buy a home is a personal decision, one which represents the fulfillment of very personal dreams and ambitions.

It is also a very important financial decision inasmuch as it represents one of, if not the largest, financial commitment a family can make.

Your future happiness and your future financial base are at stake in a home-buying decision. Doesn't it make sense to call on a professional for assistance? This is the time to CALL YOUR REALTOR.

Your realtor is knowledgeable not only about the availability and value of homes in the local market, but also understands national trends as they apply to the local situation.

Life can be more beautiful when you enjoy the benefits, security and pride of home ownership. And . . . . home ownership can become a reality with greater ease when you CALL YOUR REALTOR . . . . . He sells America First — Every Day.

A GAME PEOPLE PLAY

There's a Game, my friends,
That so many people play.
Which has no rule anyone can say,
There is no limit on how many play.

There isn't much fun,
Because this Game causes fright.
The pieces are bulky, clumsy,
And aren't very light.

This Game goes on.
From Dark to light,
Like a poker game,
That lasts all night.

The stakes are high,
And there's a lot to risk.
The winners are nigh,
Because this Game ends so brisk.

People fall down a lot,
So they can't play.
Like getting disqualified,
But in a different way.

This kind of Game,
Is played out-of-doors.
The work is hard,
A farmer's is the same,
But the work is different,
Not much like farm chores.

When the rain falls down,
The result we call mud.
But the rain that falls in this Game,
Soaks the ground with blood.

When the aftermath comes,
Silence rolls in like a fog.
In mourning of a dead man,
Resting against a log.

But he's only a drop of water,
In a blood filled Lake,
Like a rabbit when an owl has caught her,
In Heaven, the souls are beginning to wake.

Games like this are filled with mistakes,
But that's the way it goes.
And those are the stakes.

When does it end?
It lasted for years—
From the letters that they send,
That cause all the tears.

There's also problems for the ones that should live,
Men returning with a habit, to get rid of—
Anything they would give.

The story I'm telling,
You know about—of course
Of wars based on hatred,
And battles that are filled with remorse.

She looms above the universe,
Lonely and afraid.
The urge to cry out lingers in her mind.
She stands split between illusion and reality.

But copes with eternal verities.
Torn between the two forces of existence.
She dies in two separate parts.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis Vaughan

An individual at West may be easily baffled by the choices presented him and the normal procedures and experiences associated with getting through high school. He must choose his classes, friends and activities from an almost unlimited assortment in order to create an enjoyable and profitable way of life.

Buzzers to begin and end the day bewilder minds already filled with numbers corresponding to at least two locker combinations. Usually innocent, bodies unconsciously tense as we wonder if our name will be read over the P.A. system as one of those unlucky individuals summoned to report immediately to the office. Being jostled in the lunch hour scramble system, we begin to feel that it is difficult for the individual to survive alone, that he needs associations and relationships, people to share the pains and joys of high school life.

And so we join. We discover that "U is half of US" and that US offers a strength and pleasure often unattainable with just the individual. Whether this association comes through a team, a club or group, or just people we feel comfortable enough to sit in the Commons and talk to, we all become part of a larger entity. Even through our existence alone we are part of a class; a student at West High.

Christi Davidsen and her mother share an amusing moment during the individualized scheduling meeting.

School, Community blend in our lives

Sometime during the year we realized that the seasons and relationships which wrapped themselves around our lives and the brick-wall surroundings of the school could not shelter us from the realities of the outside world. Like the microcosm in which we existed, this world moved and changed and occasionally entered and affected our lives.

We lived through a year where hostilities in Northern Ireland and the war in Southeast Asia became so commonplace that we hardly noticed them. The September killing of seventeen Israeli athletes at the summer Olympics finally jolted us.

Culture came to Iowa City with the opening of Hancher Auditorium, we followed Bobby Fischer's antics as he won the world chess title, the Oakland Athletics captured the World Series and "All in the Family" entered our homes and headed the ratings.

Confusing government programs and actions such as wage-price controls, the Russian Wheat Deal and revenue sharing became issues for the first election many students were able to vote in. Richard Nixon was reelected in a landslide over Democrat George McGovern on November 7, while on the state level Dick Clark upset incumbent Senator Jack Miller and Ed Mezvinsky defeated Fred Schwengel for his House seat.

Our place in relation to the past and future was reaffirmed with the discovery of a 2½ million-year-old skull in Kenya and the last flight of the Apollo program which ended with the sixth manned moon landing.

Winter came, bringing the end of traditions we had grown up with. Life ended publication in December, the same month that former president Harry Truman died. Later that winter Lyndon Johnson died and urban renewal continued to change the face of downtown Iowa City.

A new year brought a new peace as the United States, North and South Vietnam and the Viet Cong signed a cease-fire agreement. The document promised withdrawal of all U.S. troops from South Vietnam and the release of U.S. prisoners and set up a four-nation commission to supervise the cease-fire. The war's end and the discontinuation of the draft made post-high school planning easier for many male students.

The melding of winter into spring created a collage of varied events. Miami won the Super Bowl, POW's returned, "The Godfather" won Academy awards for best picture and actor and Wounded Knee was seized and held for over a month. Rising food prices, rains and flooding and the threat of an energy crisis added a somber note to the coming of the season of renewal.

Just as a beer controversy resurfaced at the end of the school year, so evidence of political espionage during the previous fall's election resurfaced to be known as Watergate. Televised government hearings on these events became part of the school routine as we watched the coverage in the Little Theater.

Graduation, a time when students enter the outside world, coincided with three Skylab astronauts orbiting the earth in a bold, new space endeavor.

Graduation and Skylab—both look towards the future. West's sixth year will see 18 year-olds having full adult rights, a new assistant principal and girls' basketball for the first time. A trimester system will bring a new curriculum and a six-day cycle of class periods, cycles corresponding to the cycle of seasons, both wrapping themselves around the students and life at West High School.

Headlines are set downstyle in Bodoni Bold. Body type is Century Schoolbook with italic and Gothic 17 for identifications. Text paper is 80 pound enamel with a wrap-around endsheet divider. Cover one color silkscreen on brown monks cloth material. Composition, press-work, cover and binding by Inter-Collegiate Press.
